Wilmington seeks share of Reading Light profits

Wilmington selectmen met with officials of the Reading Municipal Light Dept. on Monday night, and asked for a percent of the profits of the department, as well as a weighted representation on a board having control of the department.

The meeting was the latest step in a process that has been on-going for a couple of years, in which the town of Wilmington has been preparing to possibly break away and form its own municipal electric department.

Chairman Jim Stewart told the Reading officials that Wilmington wants to negotiate. He said that the selectmen strongly feel that the option to form its own department is a strong one but said that this was not their first choice.

The meeting was more cordial in tone than several previous meetings. The two sides agreed to set up two-man negotiating teams to meet bi-weekly. They set a goal of settling matters within six months.

Wilmington submitted a counter-proposal to Reading's March 21 proposal. Specifically, Wilmington is looking for payments in lieu of taxes from net income, equalized rates for street lights, a true advisory board with some power, and regular audits of RMLD.

Wilmington is asking that Reading make payments in lieu of taxes equal to the percentage of power purchased by the town times one-half the below the line net income of the department. Wilmington further asks that, at a minimum, this payment be an amount equal to 2.5 percent of the net depreciated value of the distribution plant located in the town of Wilmington.

Further, Wilmington is asking that the electric rates for street lighting be equalized betwen the two towns.

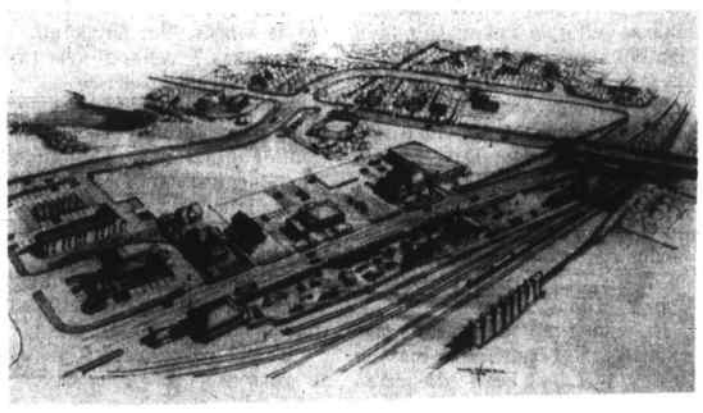

Reading had proposed an advisory board. Wilmington asks that this board have veto power over capital and operating budgets and annual expenditures. Wilmington also seeks to have one member from each of the four towns served by the RMLD, with the votes weighted by percentage of power used. This would give Wilmington a vote carrying about 65 percent of the power on the board.

Artist's conception

The Wilmington Redevelopment Authority Monday night displayed artist's renditions of two proposals for Wilmington Center. Above is the WRA proposal, known as Option Three, with a crossroad intersection in the center and a "jug-handle" connector road between Bay Bank and Bedell Bros. Insurance.

Below is a view of how the center would look had the Mass. D.P.W. proposal been built, with a double overpass in the center and a connector road to Middlesex Avenue through Heritage Commons. This plan was voted down last year, but was presented for purposes of comparison.

A tale of two centers

Selectmen to vote on proposals next week

by Arlene Surprenant

Very little new information came out of a hearing on Wilmington Town Center Monday night as a large crowd sweltered through presentations by the redevelopment authority and Selectman Robert Cain. For some, though, it was the first time they had seen revitalization possibilities for the area and the overpass/ramp design proposed by Cain.

The hearing was held by Wilmington selectmen to hear comments and help them decide which option, if any, to recommend to the state Dept. of Public Works. Selectmen will vote on whether or not to move ahead with the project at next Monday's meeting.

During their presentation, consultants for the WRA showed why they favored alternative three, which contains an at grade intersection at the corner of Church Street and Route 38 and two jug handle connector roads running from Kirk Street through the Bay Banks parking lot.

Economist John Weis of Robert Kenney Associates said the third option opened up "an awful lot of interesting opportunities" to develop the center. A sketch of the center area showed commercial/retail buildings at the corner of Wilmington Square, parking facilities, an expanded MBTA station, and a landscaped connection to Rotary Park. Weis added that under normal marketing circumstances, the revitilization would take 10 to 20 years to accomplish.

Project Manager Wendy Landman of Wallace, Floyd, Associates explained that alternative three would retain Wilmington's small town character better than the design by the DPW. She added that levels of traffic service to the year 2010 would improve from an F to a B and C rating under the third option.

During a discussion on the Burlington Avenue Bridge, consultant Bruce Campbell explained that the state would build a flat deck bridge, rather than the old truss bridge. The third alternative would bring the road back to grade level on Church Street faster than the design by DPW, he added.

One of the purposes in holding the hearing was to allow Cain to explain his proposal. Cain said he would like to see traffic coming back to the main roads and minimal disruption to impacted businesses.

The crux of Cain's plan is an overpass similar to that proposed by the DPW and two ramps, one for traffic coming off Rt.38 and going north on Church Street and one for traffic going south on Rt. 38. Cain said he would like to avoid left turns as much as possible since, from a driver's perspective, those are the hardest turns to make.

Landman said that the selectman's proposal makes it more difficult to revitalize the area and raises unexplored issues. One "critical" unknown in the plan, said Bay Banks engineer Frank Ching, is the grade of the ramps.

One of the more interesting points brought out was a remark by Cain that "it's the guy not taken that's hurting the most." He was referring to potential landtakings by the state, a subject which generated its own heat during the meeting.

Residents, led by selectman Michael McCoy, zeroed in on the aquisition process and the Business Relocation Program. They wanted to know which businesses would be taken and how the process worked.

Landman said it was hard to tell which properties would be taken since plans are only in the concept stage. Executive Director Michael Matt called such issues "premature." He claimed once a preliminary aquisition plan is developed, the state will visit owners on an individual basis and follow through with relocation.

"That's what the state does and they do it well," he said.

Businessman Al Fiorenza disagreed. He told of delays and mix-ups that occurred when he had land taken on West Street.

A majority who spoke agreed with State Rep. James Miceli that, "no matter what we do, that bridge has got to be replaced."

Speakers noted that the present structure was unsafe and "a disgrace to the town." Though Campbell said otherwise, Miceli contended it would be possible to replace the bridge as is.

Rocco DePasquale took exception to Miceli's remarks, saying "all you have to do is add some confusion and doubt and the thing goes right down the drain."

Residents asked to be shown all changes upfront so there would be no surprises at a 25 percent design hearing. Some also maintained that none of the plans addressed a possible backup in traffic once the four lanes narrowed to two by Wilmington Plaza. Selectmen replied they were seeking to widen that portion of Route 38.

"I've kept an open mind for over a year," McCoy told those in the audience. He went on to say he now favored a bridge only proposal since he wasn't "convinced" option three was an improvement over the DPW design.

Chairman Jim Stewart reminded him that 25 years ago the town opted to do nothing and problems in the area have increased.

"If someone has a better idea, come out with it," he challenged.

In an informal poll, 20 people favored the WRA option, three favored Cain's plan, five favored a bridge only proposal, and one went along with a no-build alternative.

Selectmen have asked residents to submit comments on any of the options by this Friday. Letters may be brought to Wilmington Town Hall and addressed care of the Board of Selectmen.

Two associate members resign from concom

by Arlene Surprenant

Two associate members of the Wilmington Conservation Commission resigned at last Wednesday's meeting, bringing to five the number of public servants who have stepped down to protest a decision not to re-appoint Chester Bruce.

New chairman Don Ugolini accepted with regret the resignations of members Joe Guzzo and Joan Sadowski and associates Paul Sadowski and Ella Belmore. Their action follows the resignation of former vice-chairman Robert LaVita, who submitted his letter of resignation after a conversation with Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski.

Belmore, who had served a total of 14 years with the board, contended in her letter that Bruce was not re-appointed because of "political overtones." Sadowski spoke of the many years of experience that "has been thrown down the drain" and his inability to "honestly support or participate in the activities of the present board."

"There's lots of years of experience (among the departing members) and we are going to miss that," said Ugolini. His comments were heard by the former members who stayed in the audience throughout the meeting.

Tom Roussell recognized that the commissioners had had some differences in the past. He added, however, that "nobody can take away what you did and your contribution to this commission." He included Chester Bruce in his comments when he noted that the former chairman "certainly gave his all" throughout the years.

The four remaining members of the board are Ugolini, Roussell, newly elected vice-chairman John White, and newly elected treasurer Margaret (Peg) Carson. Carson, an environmental engineer with the Department of Environmental Quality Engineers, was appointed by the town manager just last week.

Chairman Ugolini noted, at one point, that there would be a few changes in the near future to make the meetings more professional. One would be the introduction of all members and associate members at each meeting to help the public become familiar with the board.

AG overturns zoning article

The Massachusetts Attorney General's office has overturned an article passed in the Wilmington Annual Town Meeting in April.

Article 33 had rezoned a 40-acre parcel of land off Andover Street to 20,000 square foot lots. Owned by Al Fiorenza, the parcel is part of the land under consideration by the Mass. Water Resources Authority for a sludge treatment plant.

In a letter to Town Clerk Pat Ward, Assistant Attorney General Anthony Penski wrote that neither the warrant article nor the notice of public hearing made any reference to any restrictions or provisos relative to the rezoning proposal concerning the parcel in issue.

The problem with the article as passed was that it went beyond the scope of the advertised article. The article was amended on the floor of the meeting to set aside 30 percent of the lots in the subdivision to be devoted to the "HOP" Home Ownership Program, a low-income housing program. The advertising of the article had in no way mentioned setting aside the lots for the HOP program.

Bank robbed of $2500

Wilmington police are looking for a heavy-set man who robbed the Wilmington office of Bay Bank of some $2500 just before 4 p.m. Tuesday. By noon Wednesday, witnesses had made an identification from a photograph.

Witnesses described the man as being about 40, with a large beer-belly. He was wearing a green t-shirt, sunglasses and a hat.

Inspector Michael McKenna of the Wilmington Police said that the man handed a note to a teller, announcing the robbery. No weapon was shown.

The man reportedly walked out of the bank with some people not even realizing what had happened.

No escape vehicle was seen.

Debate rages over wetland filling

by Arlene Surprenant

Engineer Ken Miller and his son Jeff were at loggerheads with Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian and members of the Conservation Commission last Wednesday over filling of wetlands on their West Street property. Commissioners agreed with member Tom Roussell who said, though the Wetlands Protection Act allows the filling of up to 5,000 square feet of wetlands, it is "not an absolute right."

After the hearing was over, members voted unanimously to deny the application. The reasons given include the fact that Miller reportedly has other alternatives to filling wetlands and not enough information on replication and the 100 year storm event was provided to allow Sabounjian to write an Order of Conditions.

During the hearing, the Millers said they needed to move their existing place of business to the center of the lot because of the proposed relocation of West Street. Ken Miller stated the wetland filling would allow him to make better use of his land and provide room to maintain the building. He said he had owned the industrially zoned lot for 25 years and had plans to upgrade the parcel.

Chairman Don Ugolini noted that commissioners had yet to see plans to replicate the disturbed wetlands, which is a requirement of the Wetlands Act. Roussell added that the board needed evidence that there were no other options to filling wetlands before it could approve the proposal.

"The bottom line is you're trying to improve property so it's marketable in the future," said Sabounjian. Miller retorted they were improving it for their own use.

Help sought for septic problems

by Arlene Surprenant

A failed septic system on Tomahawk Drive had owners Joan and Robert Gillespie seeking help from the Wilmington Board of Health at its meeting Monday night.

The Gillespies said they moved into their new home, which was built by Northeast Development Corp, in August 1985 and had ongoing septic problems for the past two years. Members noted under state law, if a system fails after the first year, the owner is "stuck" with it.

In looking into the situation previously, the board found that the sandy soil had been considered "poor"but original percolation tests were fine. More recent perc tests failed, said Health Director Gregory Erickson. No one seemed to know why there was a discrepancy.

When Robert Gillespie asked the board if they could guarantee a new system for five years, Erickson replied "we won't guarantee anything."

"We're going to try to get it fixed so it works, but there are no guarantees," echoed Chairman James Ficociello.

Discussion centered on a pump which is currently part of the indoor plumbing. Though the plumbing inspector feels an indoor pump is legal, said Erickson, he views it as a force main without gravity feed.

Gillespie questioned why homes were allowed to be built with pumps if they're illegal.

"It's like a catch-22. It just doesn't make sense," said Joan Gillespie, adding "we're very, very frustrated."

The Gillespies were told to have a new system designed and see if it complies with the local health code. Board members added they might be willing to go along with a variance since this is a "hardship" case.

Cressman completes probation period

by Bill Conlon

Town Manager David Cressman enjoyed a quiet anniversary of sorts on the Fourth of July.

As of July 4, Cressman has been on the job for six months, and is no longer on probation. the town's first town manager began his official duties on January 4, 1988.

The town charter which outlines the Selectmen - Town Manager form of government states in Section 5A that Cressman could have been dismissed without cause during the probationary period, on a simple four-fifths vote of the board of selectmen.

Now that the probationary period has expired, the dismissal of the town's first chief executive is made much more difficult.

Section 8 of the charter states that the town manager may still be removed from office on a four-fifths vote by the selectmen, but a formal recall procedure must now be followed.

The charter states that a written resolution from the selectmen must be filed with the town clerk at least 30 days before dismissal, setting forth the specific reasons for the recall. Then, within ten days of receiving the resolution, the town manager may reply in writing to the charges and may also request a public hearing to air the grievance.

Should the selectmen decide to go ahead with the recall, the town manager would be given up to three months salary for severance pay.

Cressman this week joked about the expiration of his probation, saying it was worth lighting a few firecrackers, and said there is no hint of any recall in the works.

Fire destroys building

A two-alarm fire destroyed an old warehouse on Salem Street in Wilmington, near the Tewksbury line early Thursday morning, July 7. The fire was reported about 2:30 a.m., while Wilmington fire- fighters were at a trash compactor fire at Wilmington Plaza. Mutual aid was summoned from Tewksbury, with North Reading and Woburn covering the station. The warehouse was a wooden structure of heavy construction, nearly 50 years old. It was built by the late Abraham Leiter, who would go about town in a wagon with a draft horse, collecting old rags for recycling. The fire, according to a Wilmington fire official, was definitely set. (Photo by Joe Brown, Times-Chronicle)

Berry Bog attracts visitors

by Arlene Surprenant

If residents have a half hour to spare, they might wish to take a leisurely stroll through the Glen Road Berry Bog immediately adjacent to Wilmington Town Hall.

Conservation Administrator Libby Sabounjian has just completed mapping the paths and writing up a brochure to guide nature lovers through the natural resource area.

According to Sabounjian, this is the first of several conservation lands she hopes to map for the enjoyment of local citizens. She said both Highway Supt. Robert Palmer and Recreation Director Ron Swasey helped by cleaning up the area, creating a footbridge to connect with nearby Everett Avenue, and setting up picnic tables in the recreation area.

The bog was purchased for conservation purposes in 1972 from Kennard Berry, who had run an active cranberry bog on the land. Lubbers Brook flows through the site, which offers a changing habitat and a mix of wetland communities.

The brochures may be obtained in the conservation office at town hall.

Another art exhibit winner

The Wilmington Council for the Arts would like to announce another winner in the art exhibit held recently at the Arts Center. Due to an oversight, the name of Patricia Sullivan was omitted from the list of ribbon recipients previously published.

Ms. Sullivan's watercolor entitled "From a Friend" had also been chosen as a third place winner along with Madeleine DeSesa's "Rhododendron" which was announced earlier.

Congratulations and apologies to Patricia!

KEOGH REPORTS DUE
Once a year - by July 31 in most cases - Form 5500 reports are due on Keogh and Defined Benefit Plans. This is the annual checkup on whether the plans are being administered properly.
Several different forms may be used. Form 5500EZ is designed for one-participant (or husband and wife) plans. Plans with two and 99 participants at the beginning of the year have a choice: Form 5500-C, which must be filed for the first plan year and the last one, when all assets are distributed, and at least one out of every three years in between; and Form 5500-R, which is the short form that can be used for two out of three years. Use Form 5500 for plans with more than 100 participants.
For all forms, your trustee should supply a signed Schedule P. This starts the clock on a three-year statute of limitations on IRS assessment of income taxes on the plan trust income, should the plan become disqualified for any reason.

IMG appeals hearing over; decision in four months

by Arlene Surprenant

A lengthy hearing before the state Housing Appeals Committee (HAC) to locate an affordable housing condominium project off Ballardvale Street concluded with little fanfare last Thursday. There were approximately nine sessions in all, as proponents from the Investors Management Group (IMG) appealed a negative decision of the local board of appeals on their application for a comprehensive permit.

According to HAC Chairman Maurice Corman, now that the hearing is over both sides can either compromise and reach a quick sculement or the state commission will review all records and evidence and reach a decision in approximately four months.

Most of Thursday's discussion centered on the Connery Report, a strategic housing development plan, which reportedly reveals that Wilmington's regulations "unreasonably restrict" the development of affordable housing. The report was prepared by Wilmington's housing consultants and turned over to the Affordable Housing Task Force.

As IMG attorney Andrew Hier tried to admit the report as evidence, Town Counsel Alan Altman argued that the report is not a public document "until proven otherwise" and should not be introduced in the case. He asked how he could cross examine the report when the document is unsigned and there's no way of telling who the author is.

The report, claimed Altman, "has no stature with the town" since the task force took no vote on it and just used it to review ways to initiate their own lower cost homes.

Altman also elicited the fact that Jay Tighe, a former member of the task force, had turned over the "unsolicited" report to the president of IMG. He said afterwards he was surprised that a town board member would take such action.

Corman accepted the report as an exhibit and reminded both lawyers that "all we have to decide is if the decision of the board of appeals was consistent with local needs."

Part of the session was devoted to a site walk of the property to look at such things as area traffic, wetlands, and proximity of the proposed units to neighbors on Arlene Avenue.

At the end of the hearing Corman predicted, if the project goes through, neighborhood property values would increase and the development would be "the most beautiful thing in this town" because of the reputation of the developers. A similar project by IMG in Burlington, said Corman, is being touted as a "showpiece" by Governor Michael Dukakis in his campaign for the presidency.

Though he recognized that there would be "tremendous hostility" on the part of abutters who traditionally oppose change, Corman maintained once the units are built, neighbors would be pleased and wonder why they voiced objections in the first place.

Billerica firm charged in dumping

A Billerica firm has been assessed a civil penalty of $10,000 by the Mass. Water Resources Authority (MWRA) for improper sewage dumping at the Wilmington dumping station.

A truck from Able Sanitation was at the station on June 30, during a spot check by an MWRA inspector. While the Able truck was dumping, a truck from another firm was waiting. When the dumping station monitor checked the ticket of origin from the waiting truck, it had the same address as the truck which was dumping.

In other words, if one were to believe the tickets, a homeowner on Shawsheen Avenue had his septic system pumped on June 29 by one firm, and on June 30 by another firm.

The Wilmington monitor turned the tickets over to the MWRA inspector, who instructed the driver of the first truck to accompany him and a police officer to the address on the ticket.

Enroute, the driver apparently had second thoughts, and told the inspector that the load had come from a Billerica address.

The MWRA has subsequently notified the firm of a potential fine of $10,000, which may be appealed.

Sewage dumping has become a problem for firms servicing Billerica, Tewksbury and nearby towns, since the Lawrence septage station has been cut to 50 percent of its former volume by the state DEQE.

Wilmington, unlike its neighbors to the north and west, is tied into the MWRA sewer system, which serves Greater Boston. The MWRA has recently increased the sewer use charges for Wilmington due to the volume of material coming from Wilmington industries.

The MWRA had its inspection team at the Wilmington dumping station on June 29 and 30, taking samples from each of the trucks dumping there.

HOP to go nationwide?

The HOP concept of Homeownership Opportunity Program developed by the administration of Governor Michael Dukakis will be spread nationwide if the governor becomes the next president. This information comes from Amy Anthony, Secretary of the Executive Office of Communities and Development, who explained how HOP works to syndicated columnist Kenneth Harney.

In a June 25 article in the New York paper Newsday, Anthony claimed the HOP program is so successful it has stimulated construction or approval of 5,000 new moderate priced units in Massachusetts in the past three years. She said Dukakis is not in favor of "deep-pocket" federal programs but partnerships where towns have to "put up your money, land, talents, time and other resources" or they're "out of the game."

"Local Democrats sitting back waiting for chunks of federal urban-aid cash to rain down on them after eight years of drought under Reagan may have a longer dry spell ahead," wrote Harney. He added that "political conservatives and liberals alike are in for jolts if the Massachusetts governor heads south."

WCTV seeks a general manager

Wilmington Community Television, Inc. (WCTV) is an independent non-profit corporation that will provide local access cable television programming to the town of Wilmington. WCTV will develop and promote cultural, educational, government, community sports and public affairs programming over the public access channels. All Wilmington residents, and organizations based in Wilmington, will be eligible for WCTV membership.

The board of directors of WCTV is currently seeking a general manager to establish, maintain and manage a local cable access television studio which will be located in the Swain School in Wilmington. The general manager's responsibilities will include: studio design and equipment procurement, video production and programming, creation and delivery of instructional programs, staff supervision, fund raising, and general administrative responsibilities. The individual should have a minimum of two years experience in cable television production (local access experience preferred) and one year in management. Interested parties should send a resume with salary history and cover letter to: Wilmington Community Television Inc., P.O. Box 35, Wilmington, MA, 01887.

Wilmington Community Television, Inc. receives five percent of Continental Cablevision's gross annual revenues, plus equipment/facilities grants, for the operation of the non-profit access corporation. These funds will be used to build, maintain and operate a production studio for the use of all WCTV members. The general manager's salary will also be derived from these funds. WCTV will offer classes in all aspects of program production including camera operation, editing, lighting and directing. Once certified in the proper use of the quipment and studio facilities, a WCTV member will be eligible to sign out equipment, utilize the studio, and produce his/her own local cable television show.

WCTV President Charlie Gilbert and Studio Design Chairperson Susan Mahoney have been working very hard over the past few months finding a home for WCTV, and are anxious to begin construction in the Swain School. The WCTV general manager will have a key role in this process and will work closely with the WCTV Board of Directors to get local access production and programming underway as soon as possible.

Water table variance denied

by Arlene Surprenant

A request for a variance from local water table adjustments was denied by the Wilmington Board of Health Monday night. As they turned down the request of developer Richard Stuart of Northeast Development Corp, they noted unless there's "an extraordinary circumstance" in the future, the board will not grant such variances.

The request came about as a result of a mistake. It was learned that the septic system on a lot on Middlesex Avenue was too high because someone had moved the benchmark that measures elevations.

Board members said they would be willing to grant a variance of up to three inches but could not go along with Stuart's proposed four inch variance.

Stuart argued that he didn't see "much difference" between the two figures and asked that his objections be included in the record.

"Somebody blew it and it wasn't us," said Chairman James Ficocielo, adding that "the people in town have a right to have systems that work."

THE CONDO OR CO-OP ALTERNATIVE

If you feel priced out of the market for a single family home, a condominium or co-op may be a good alternative. Their prices can often be very friendly to first-time buyers.

When you purchase a condo, it can be located in a large building, townhouse, or garden apartment project. You own the unit in which you live and a proportional share of the "common elements,' such as roof, grounds, hallways, and recreational facilities. In addition to your mortgage, you also pay a monthly fee to cover your share of the project's upkeep. A co-op ownership is similar, except that, instead of owning a deed, you own shares in the co-operative corporation.

Examine the bylaws, budget, and other important documents before finalizing the sale. Understand any restrictions that may be placed on residents. Can you have pets? Can you rent your unit should you move? Your Realtor can give you information on the range of condos and co-ops in your area, and help you match price and life style to your needs!

If there's a move in your future, the real estate experts at Kelley & Kompany are ready to serve you. Call us at 658-4171 or drop by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite #10) in Wilmington.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

A straw poll taken among the selectmen at Monday night's public hearing on the renovation of the Wilmington town center gives evidence that the center is in the danger of remaining the same for years to come. This could be an unfortunate move, with some future consequences for the town that are not too positive.

Of the five selectmen, there was evident division on which plan to endorse. However, one proposal, put forth by the Redevelopment Authority, was supported by the town manager and the majority of citizens present at town hall on Monday evening.

Specifically, Jay Donovan's committee proposes an at-grade crossing for the Burlington Avenue bridge, elevated over the railroad tracks only. Unlike the Department of Public Works plan, there would be no depression of Route 38, which is an extremist plan for a town this size. Secondly, the Redevelopment Authority plan would construct a jug handle. That's traffic-jargon which basically means a road would originate at Ralph's Automotive, and would come out between Bedell Brothers' Insurance and Bay Bank. Viewed on an engineer's drawing, it resembles a half-circle that simply takes some of the traffic load off of Route 38.

Next, the train depot in the town center would be developed to allow for commuter parking (badly needed today). With all of the above, people would find that this construction, in effect, visually extends the town center to the picturesque Rotary Park.

The other plans as presented are too complex. Some have compared them to shooting a mouse with an elephant gun. And one plan, which came up only recently from Selectman Bob Cain, sounds as if it were written on the back of a cocktail napkin.

All in all some solution is needed, and the Redevelopment Authority has come up with the plan which has earned the most public support. And as Jay Donovan said in an interview on Tuesday, "I believe the Board of Selectmen needs to give direction to the state. Currently, there isn't the services necessary at that center, and certainly won't be 20 years from now if it is simply left alone and ignored."

Come July 16 you had better be prepared to let your fingers do a little more walking, to use an old phone company cliche. That's the date that the new 508 area code will be introduced for 190 communities in response to what New England Telephone describes as an incredible business and residential growth-rate in eastern Massachusetts. Both Tewksbury and Wilmington have been slated as 508 communities.

Back in 1985 the phone company began studying the need for an additional area code out of fear that it would run out of phone numbers for new customers. That's according to David Ravanesi, Associate Director of Public Relations for New England Telephone, who said, "We were literally running out of numbers, and could have run out by the end of the year with only 40,000 left."

Ravanesi cited the high-tech industry and the surprising surge in the use of cellular phones, as two factors which have largely contributed to the growth. Ravanesi noted that telephone company officials have continued to be impressed with the phenomenal attraction of car phones in the area.

Basically, the addition of an area code allows Ma Bell to double its capacity. After July 16, area code 617 will serve 61 communities, or 1.2 million costumers. The new area code, 508, will be comprised of 190 cities and towns, or roughly 1.3 million costumers.

And how the borders run between each area code is what will cause some temporary inconvenience, at the very least. As Wilmington will be area code 508, you'll have to remember to dial 617 first when calling your grandmother in bordering Woburn, which will be keeping its present area code. However, if you dial a friend in neighboring towns like Billerica or North Reading, you would dial the same number as always, since they will be within the new 508 area code with Wilmington.

Sound confusing?

If so, perhaps that's why some local boards of selectmen have opposed the change to 508 in their communities. Both Wilmington and North Reading officials have filed appeals with the Department of Public Utilities (D.P.U.). Similar appeals to stay in the 617 area code by Dover and Walpole were recently denied by the state.

But Ravanesi believes the telephone company has researched the new area code enough so as to make the transition an easy one. Calling patterns were researched to determine which towns should be changed, and a massive publicity campaign has been under way to frequent costumers with the birth of 508 on July 16. "We've been sending out bill inserts and promotional material since 1986", said Ravanesi.

In the meantime, the phone company has a two-staged plan to help its costumers adjust to an additional area code in the BayState. For three months after July 16 there will be what New England Telephone calls a "Permissive Period". If you forget to dial the necessary area code, your call will still go through. Then, after October 14, people who forget to dial a needed area code or who use the wrong area code will have the call intercepted by an operator providing correct information. This service will last for one year, and after that we're on our own.

And the good news is that according to Ravanesi, "This new area code will meet our needs for 20 years at the present rate of growth." Ravanesi went on to say that "You should remind your relatives and friends of your new area code."

Reminding your mother-in-law should be optional here.

In praise of winter

by Bill Conlon

Drip ... drip ... drip ... wipe ... drip ... drip ...

Can you believe it -- some people enjoy this time of year? Millions of Yankees grumble and whine all winter -- reciting the mantra of "I can't wait for summer to get here" -- just for the rare honor of scalding their thighs on a car seat. It doesn't make sense.

That must mean they enjoy sticking to the furniture, slapping at mosquitoes, and slowly oozing life from every pore.

It's weird. Some people actually enjoy this self abuse. Why? Is it the skimpy clothes? The backyard cookouts?

Winter, sweet winter, is the only enjoyable season. The cold-eyed Goddess in White takes good care of her subjects, if she's given her due respect. Oh, spring and fall have their own special charms (mud in spring -- leaf litter in fall), but winter is the only beautiful season. Everything is clean and lily white. Cold, crisp and lovely. Ahhh!

But folks lie. They say they can't wait for summer to get here, then they hide indoors with an air conditioner until it's safe to come out again. Sure they love summer. Uh-huh.

An air conditioner is a mixed blessing. The AC unit keeps the cool of spring in the air all day, just lovely, but the machine collects a terrible payment at quitting time.

Crossing the door at the end of the workday is a joyful moment in winter. You can't wait to get home, have dinner and sit by the fire with the kids. It means the end of the day's efforts. Time to rest.

But quitting time in summer is Death incarnate.

As you walk through the doorway from an air-conditioned office into the "Real World" of summer, it's like sky-diving in the tropics. You jump out at 20,000 feet altitude, where everything is cold and crisp, then your parachute pops open at 100 feet and drops you smack in the middle of the Mekong Delta. Heat and humidity slam into your chest, and every breath feels like boiled molasses.

The boss smiles as he locks the door behind you. He's staying for a bit of overtime, but you didn't want any. Go home and sweat, kid.

You can eat ice cream, but that just makes you fat, and the added insulation will make you even hotter in the long run. You can't win.

A dip in the pool helps, until you climb back out. Then you're just sweaty AND wet. Ah, wouldst that we could all grow gills for the summer, to live underwater with the fishes. Might make barbeque cooking kind of tough, but the tradeoff might be worth it.

You can go to the beach to cool off, sort of. The beach gives you a choice -- you can either bake on the hot sand, or freeze in the Arctic cold of the North Atlantic. There is no cool at the beach -- just hot and cold. Neither is very refreshing.

The air is cooler in the mountains, but the mosquitoes will quickly chase you back indoors again, where it's nice and hot. Back where you belong. If you'd like you can smear on bug repellant, but your heat-widened pores will make the fluid sting like burning gasoline.

As for sleep -- you must be kidding. Summer sleep is much the same as winter's, but only if you slather yourself with honey, roll around the sheets until everything sticks, then set the house on fire.

There is no escape. If you get manage to cool off, somehow, it never lasts. Minutes or even hours -- but eventually the sticky heat will have you dripping again. Summer always wins.

No, winter is the only season for real comfort. Sleep is warm and toasty, the skies are crystal blue, and the world is covered with a fresh, white sheet. Or as a friend once pointed out -- "Getting warm is a lot easier than keeping cool, and it's a lot more fun if you do it the right way." No stinging sweat in your eyes, no maggots in the garbage can and no strangers wandering the neighborhood at 4 a.m.

Ah, Mistress January, your loving son awaits your return.

Oozing sweat from every pore.

Well , here we disagree.
But when he snuggles in my lap
Then there is not the slightest gap

point of view

Members will be missed

by Arlene Surprenant

Perhaps the most important words issued at last week's meeting of the Wilmington Conservation Commission were those by Tom Roussell, who stated that in the past the departing commission members "went beyond" what was required and would be missed.

To date, a total of five members and associates with long years of experience have stepped down from the board to protest a decision not to re-appoint veteran member Chester Bruce. In taking this painful action, Bob LaVita, Joan Sadowski, Joe Guzzo, Ella Belmore, and Paul Sadowski are giving up years devoted to a job they loved. They are giving it up for something important, namely a principle.

One has to admire their stand. In making their feelings and years of experience public, the members have also revealed how difficult it may be for the town to make up for their loss.

Many people would not want the voluntary job of commissioner. It is a job which combines long hours; hard and often unpopular decisions; and considerable knowledge of the environment, state laws, and conservation issues.

Commissioners spend much of their free time inspecting parcels which come before their board. These site visits are often scheduled before the workday begins at 7 a.m, after 5 p.m, or on weekends when most of us are at home trying to unwind. The job includes reading and understanding the FEMA maps, interpreting the Wetlands Protection Act, and knowing which projects could be harmful to the town and why.

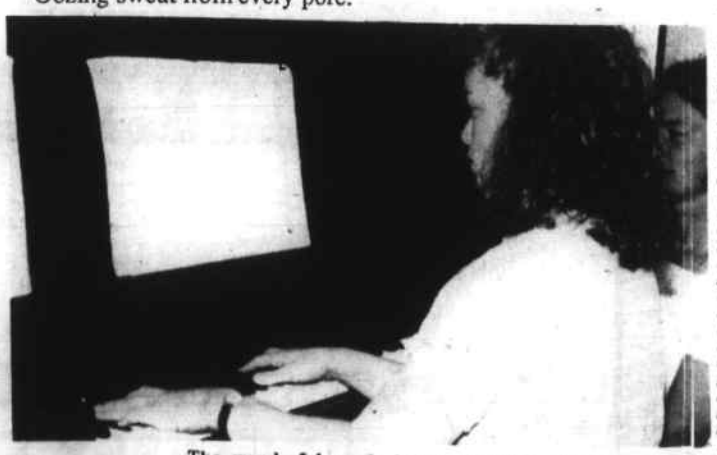

To this observer, though members may have taken differing stands on certain issues, the board as a whole has been consistent in its dealings with the public and developers alike. Chet Bruce, in particular, had faced more than his share of difficult decisions as chairman and served this town well. Even when he had taken an unpopular stand, it was rare when he didn't take the time to listen to opposing viewpoints and public complaints.

Libby Sabounjian, the Conservation Administrator, has been content to let the controversy swirl around her. It was her appointment that triggered the challenge to the town manager's authority and set off the chain of events that culminated with the recent resignations.

It should be noted here that Libby has earned this observer's respect. She has a thorough knowledge of conservation and environmental issues and a determination to preserve open space. She asks relentless questions of engineers and has commented extensively to the state on several 774 projects proposed for this town. She lends her expertise where needed. She, too, has worked diligently to benefit this town.

Now it is up to the remaining members of the commission, in conjunction with the Conservation Administrator, to continue to weigh carefully upcoming applications and decisions.

A vote of confidence goes to the board. As does the knowledge that commissioners will acutely feel the loss of so many years of education and experience in the months ahead.

Voke aid bill funding falls through

by Arlene Surprenant

/ith Governor Michael Dukakis' ure to fund the Voke Aid Bill, ich was enacted in the state islature last winter, members of Shawsheen Tech School Comtee voted Tuesday to cut 11,220 from the FY '88-'89 lget. The cuts would still leave a icit of $78,780, which is ex, ted to be absorbed by economies ughout the upcoming year.

he bill, if funded, would have vided in excess of $8.8 million 65 vocational schools in ssachusetts and brought state port for vocational programs up 35 percent. In addition, the bill uld have provided $15 million in uipment grants to be made ilable on a competitive basis. cording to Tech Supt/Director arles Lyons, the equipment nts will still go through.

n a recommendation by Lyons, nmitteemen agreed to cut im-vements to the tennis court and king lot, and funding for four es, three personnel positions, a ic skills computor laboratory, cial education contract services, l the textbook and equipment counts. Lyons explained the sonnel cuts will not require teacher layoffs.

Lyons recommended the cuts rather than go back to the five member towns to appropriate the funds.

"Although state bureaucrats turned their back on vocational education, now is not the time to subject our member towns to and request additional appropriations," Lyons told committeemen, who agreed with his thinking. He added he hoped town officials would remember the Tech's "fiscal prudence" next year as a "significant sacrifice and a show of good faith."

These remarks were echoed by Vice-Chairman Kevin Sowyrda, who claimed the committee is willing to absorb the loss of state aid. He said he and others were pleased with the support their budget had received from finance committees and town selectmen alike.

Reactions to the startling news from Beacon Hill ranged from disbelief to bitterness to grave concern for the future of vocational education and the students themselves.

Chairman Jack Miller couldn't resist a tongue-in-cheek reference to "Mike Dukakis' gift to Shawsheen."

While noting that the state budget constraints had a lot to do with the non-funding, Sowyrda still expressed his concern.

"Clearly the governor has reneged not only on a promise but on a very glamorous bill signing ceremony," said Sowyrda, referring to a highly publicized ceremony in March with educators, Dukakis, State Rep James Miceli and other officials.

Sowyrda explained he was most concerned with the "victims," who were the 1,362 students at Shawsheen Tech as well as the thousands in other districts.

Sowyrda spoke against an administration which would turn its back on "a commitment to educational excellence" and pointed out it was ironic the governor is now using his support for vocational education as a campaign issue.

"We're quite upset over this. He (Dukakis) promised us the world then yanked it out from under us," Treasurer John Gillis told the Town Crier. Gillis agreed with Sowyrda that the governor went back on a promise but, he added, that was "not before he got everything he could out of it."

Water restriction remains in place despite recent showers

The many showers of late have had some easing effect on the summer drought, but the total rainfall since July 1 totals less than one inch. Many of the showers have been quite localized. A storm at 6 p.m. Sunday, for instance, was quite violent in the southern part of Wilmington, yet the rain guage at the pumping station at Brown's Crossing in North Wilmington showed no measurable rain the next morning.

Rainfall measurements at Brown's Crossing have been as follows:

July 1	.30 inch
July 8	.01
July 9	.15
July 11	.46

Wilmington's water supplies have recovered from a low point in June when the town had to buy water from Burlington. The water restriction remains in force and is credited with helping restore a healthy volume of water in the town's two standpipes. Under the restriction, outdoor water use is allowed only on an odd-even basis.

Illustrations donated to Arts Council library

An album of illustrations of some of Stephen Foster's famous songs by local artist Joseph Sanchez was donated to the Wilmington Council for the Arts for their library by Henry Porter. After attending Arts Fair '88 at the Arts Center, Mr. Porter's daughters related to him what was happening at the old town hall. He decided he would like to present this set of drawings done for him by the artist in 1967.

Accompanied by daughter Mrs. Eileen Montgomery of Florida, he stopped in during a Council meeting where an appreciative group accepted the book. Henry took a "grand tour" of the Center at which he had worked for several years before becoming Wilmington's long-time postmaster.

Another interesting book had previously been given to the Arts Center by Mrs. Dorothy Lafionatis, Chairperson of the Historical Commission. It contains several poems illustrated by artist Elizabeth N. Little, all in a nautical vein. This book was copyrighted in 1891.

Commentary

An open letter to Wilmington selectmen

Gentlemen:

In response to your request for comments on the options for Wilmington Town Center, let this be one more letter in favor of Alternative Three, which is supported by the redevelopment authority.

Though not perfect, Alternative Three would best address the needs of Wilmington now and in the near future. It improves traffic flow, opens up some interesting possibilities for an attractive downtown area, takes parked cars off Main Street, and allows for the free circulation of pedestrians. Most of all, it would retain much of Wilmington's small town character, something that wouldn't occur with the DPW option or that proposed by Mr. Cain.

The Wilmington Redevelopment Authority has done more than bemoan the problems in the center of town. Members have invested alot of time, energy, and money in looking at alternatives to the DPW design. Their consultants have reviewed the bridge proposal, conducted traffic studies, and called on their own knowledge to come up with a plan that could work. Now it's our turn to listen to the experts and trust in their judgement.

There are some voices of dissent. People fear the unknown and just don't like change. As a veteran of one or two battles against changes in town, I sympathize wholeheartedly with those homeowners, businessmen, and tenants caught in the middle of what could be a lengthy reconstruction and relocation process. They have every right to speak out and voice their concerns.

But the changes proposed in town center are NOT a luxury. They are a necessity.

With an F level of traffic service at Wilmington Square now, we must do more than just accept a bridge only proposal. We must widen roads, re-route traffic, and do whatever it takes to solve the current bottleneck in that section.As time goes on and more of Route 38 is enlarged by Wilmington Plaza, we can look back and be glad we didn't once again let an oppportunity slip through our fingers.

Gentlemen, now is the time to unite and move ahead with a project which, in the long run, will benefit ALL Wilmington citizens.

Let this not be a decision based on politics or personal feelings or on what's best for the few.

Let this be a decision based on intelligence, thoughtfulness, and a determination to finally take charge and admit something needs to be done now. Only then will you be serving the best interests of all of us.

Sincerely,
Arlene Surprenant

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

We would like to thank the wnspeople of Wilmington for eir generous support of Wilngton Pop Warner football and eerleading by their participation the carnival during the "Fun on e Fourth" week.

Every organization needs a lot of dicated volunteers who are illing to work hard. We are very oud that we had a minimum of 12 op Warner people every night on e carnival grounds. This being ily our first year sponsoring the rnival, we feel that on the whole e saw many, many smiling faces at week.

We would also like to thank Buzz tapczynski, the board of appeals, ie board of selectmen, the Wilington police and fire departents, Bob Palmer, and the highay department and the school ommittee for their confidence in s.

We would be remiss if we did not say a big thank you to L.M.C. Amusements, Inc., and especially to Larry and Marion Cushing for making our week so successful.

Once again, we give all of you our special thanks on behalf of the Wilmington Pop Warner Board of Directors, coaches, players and cheerleaders,

The Board of Directors

Dear Larz:

It is often said that there is nothing more American than baseball, apple pie and ice cream. That may be true if you live in a big city, but here in Wilmington one might reasonably argue that it is softball, apple pie and ice cream. Wilmington has given its people of all ages the opportunity to enjoy softball. Especially with the highly successful mens' "over 35" league and the Tom Aprile Memorial Day Class Tournament. Unfortunately, the 1988 softball season is over for the mens' "under 35" league, and its future is in doubt.

Three games into the 1988 season, Commissioner Jack Cushing closed down the mens' "under 35" league. I will not attempt to analyze the events or circumstances as to how or why this happened, for that is not my purpose. My intent is to prevent an occurrence such as this from happening in the future.

An immediate answer escapes me, but I'm sure a solution from debate and dialogue would prove fruitful. With that I offer a suggestion for one basic fundamental change. That a joint effort (a committee perhaps with designated terms served) be instituted for the benefit of Wilmington softball.

Harriet Mabel Jenkins

Harriet Mabel Jenkins, 97, died July 11, 1988 at the Meadow View Nursing Home in North Reading, after a lengthy illness.

Born in Kansas City, Missouri, daughter of the late George and Mary (Winchell) Jenkins, she was the aunt of Marion L. Miller of Hathaway Road, Wilmington, and the sister of Carl Jenkins of North Reading.

Until her retirement, Miss Jenkins was employed by the Boston Lying In Hospital for many years and was a recognized artist in oil paintings of still life and portrait paintings.

Gravside services were held Wednesday, July 13 at 2 p.m. in Wildwood Cemetery. Arrangements were by the Nichols Funeral Home of Wilmington.

Edward J. Cuoco

Edward J. Cuoco, of Dracut, formerly of Wilmington, died suddenly Monday morning, July 11, 1988 in Dracut.

Forty-seven years old, he was born in Wilmington, the son of Mary (D'Orso) Cuoco of Wilmington and the late Eupleo Cuoco. He lived in Wilmington most of his life, and in Billerica for a few years prior to moving to Dracut two years ago.

Mr. Cuoco was employed for over 26 years by the New England Telephone Company and at the time of his death, was outside plant supervisor at the Lawrence office.

He held membership in the Tewksbury - Wilmington Lodge #2070 BPOE.

Mr. Cuoco is survived by his wife, Martha E. (Boermeester); his mother, Mary Cuoco; his two children, Edward J., Jr. and Jennifer M. Cuoco; his four brothers, John, Joseph, Albert 'Cookie' all of Wilmington, and James E. Cuoco of Reading; his four sisters, Mrs. William (Eleanor) Doyle of Wilmington, Mrs. Kenneth (Delores) Neagle of Kentucky and Mrs. Lawrence (Rosalie) Antonellis of Newton; also many nieces and nephews. Summer camp openings at Shawsheen Tech

Shawsheen Tech has become a summer camp for students interested in learning about computers, honing academic skills, and learning about careers.

There are openings in Cycle II of the Computer Camp, which runs from July 25 to August 12, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Beginner, intermediate and advanced classes are offered for students who have completed grades three to nine, with a computer terminal for every student. Equipment includes IBM, Apple IIE, G.S. IIC and Digital, VAX-11-780. Students are exposed to graphics, Logo, keyboarding, and word processing.

Campers do more than stand up and stretch for a break from computer time. American Red Cross swimming instruction takes place at the Shawsheen Tech pool, with water games and free swimming included. Campers also participate in soccer, lacrosse, hockey, volleyball and weight training.

Computer Camp fee is $150 for the session, with snacks provided daily. To register, call Shawsheen Tech at 667-2111, and ask for Jack Bowen or Joyce Coache.

Thirty-five area students, grades seven to 12 are exploring careers in the electrical, graphic arts, and plumbing areas in a six week program at Shawsheen's Vocational Skills Camp. This innovative offering is funded by the Private Industry Councils of Greater Lowell and Cambridge.

"This is a unique venture, with private industry sharing and funding of a vocational exploratory program," said John F. McDermott, assistant superintendent for Community Services. "Rather than having students work at odd jobs during the summer, we can put them through an educational program that improves their awareness of good career opportunities," he said. In addition to vocational training, participants receive job counseling and interviewing skills.

Summer Enrichment Camp began July 5, and is benefitting 30 Shawsheen Tech students enrolled in programs in English, math and study skills, as well as vocational programs in culinary arts and diesel mechanics. This program was made possible through a grant from the state Department of Education, Division of Occupational Education. This program runs for six weeks.

River Rhapsody summer concert series continues

Take a lawn chair and a picnic supper to the banks of the Merimack River as Lowell Heritage State Park continues its series of Tuesday evening concerts at the Sampas Pavilion.

The third concert of the season will be held Tuesday, July 19, and will feature a performance by Woods Tea. The group is comprised of a trio of Vermont-based folk musicians playing banjos, mandolins, acoustic guitars, pennywhistles, and concertina. They have played throughout the Northwest and in the Mid-West.

All concerts are free and accessible to the public, and will begin at 7 p.m. In case of inclement weather, all performances will be held as scheduled at the Smith-Baker Center, located on Merrimack Street in Lowell. For more information on the concert series, please call 459-1000. For a recorded message of weekly park events, call 453-1950, evenings.

This concert series is being funded in part by a grant from the New England Foundation for the Arts, with local support from the Himalayian Restaurant, Lowell Hilton, Lowell Regatta Festival Foundation, and Lowell Heritage State Park, a division of the Deaprtment of Environmental Management.

Patten Library presents "The Black Stallion"

The Patten Public Library presents the movie, "The Black Stallion," on Thursday, July 14, ad 2:30 p.m. for children seven to 12 years old. The film will last 118 minutes.

The Patten Public Library will hold a craft program on Tuesday, July 19, at 3 p.m. for children six to 12 years old. The children will make soda-pop banks. Each child must take one empty 12 ounce tonic can. The library will supply all other materials.

The Patten Public Library presents a special program Wednesday, July 20 at 2 p.m. for children five to 12 years old. "McGruff," the anti-crime dog, will share "summer safety tips" with the children.

CPR instructor course at regional health center

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington will conduct a CPR instructor course Tuesdays, August 2, 9, 16 and 23 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Participants will be certified according to the standards of the American Heart Association, and must be currently certified in basic life support CPR.

A CPR instructor course serves to both perfect CPR skills by using "recorder" training mannequins, as well as instructing participants relative to developing lecturing skills and style. Upon successful completion of this course the participant will qualify for a one-year certification as a basic cardiac life support isntructor. This certification enables the participant to teach the three levels of CPR; A, B, and C. Pre-registration is required for this course. For more information, please call 657-3910, extension 567.

Fall program openings at Shawsheen Tech

There is a limited number of openings for high school sophomores interested in training for vocational and technical careers at Shawsheen Valley Tech.

Among the programs with spaces for students entering 10th grade are business technology, chemical laboratory technology, culinary arts and data processing.

Business technology specializes in training students in three major business areas: accounting, secretarial science and word processing. Seniors may also specialize in medical or legal procedures.

Students in the chemical laboratory program are trained to perform both simple and sophisticated laboratory testing on all types of samples, material and synthetic, and perform many types of analysis. Students may specailze in a particular area of chemistry.

Culinary arts students are future cooks, chefs, butchers and bakers. Students are exposed to the many facets of food preparation for all types of food, as well as menu planning and pricing, food storage and supervisory work. The school operates a bakery and dining room open to the public to give students real world experience in this area.

Data processing focuses on the basic use of a computer through a curriculum that stresses programming and operations. Students have hands on experience with a variety of computer systems. Math aptitude, dexterity and close attention to detail are suggested qualities for students interested in this program.

Other openings for students who have successfuly completed ninth grade are in these areas: automotive, electronics, health technology, metal fabrication, and plumbing.

Ninth graders explore

Bruce Perkins, director of guidance, said there are also openings for students entering ninth grade. "Our ninth graders explore 14 of the 20 vocational - technical programs we offer, spending a two week cycle in each," Perkins, explained.

Perkins emplasized the value of this opportunity. "At this juncture in the student's educational planning, it is important to keep open as many avenues to the future as possible. Shawsheen Tech, with its broad academic program, coupled with a strong vocational - technical program, offers the most valid educational opportunity in this regard."

The exploratory is offered in addition to the ninth grade academic program that typically includes English, algebra or general math, biology, social studies, physical education, and related technology. Perkins noted both college preparatory and general academic programs are available.

Self-awareness program at the regional health center

The Community Health Education Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington will offer a new "Self Awareness: Personal Discovery and Self-Concept," Thursday evenings, August 4, and 11 from 7 to 9.

Self-awareness is learning to understand what it is that makes a person unique. Self-concept, or the image we have of ourself, is our own creation. Our behavior is the result of our self-concept at the moment of our behavior. A person with a healthy, adequate and positive self-concept is likely to take risks, to develop new competences, and to explore new experiences.

Learning to recognize and stick to personal needs and values, is more than an interesting activity. The first step toward developing healthy lifestyle changes, is knowing who you are and what is important to you. This program will assist you in improving your own experiences with weight loss, exercise regimes, managing stres-ses, assertiveness, personal safety and needed job changes. Participants will explore self-awareness and self-concept through group discussion, lecture, and a variety of group and individual activities.

The program will be conducted by Susanne M. Trudeau, B.S., community health educator. Susanne holds a bachelor's degree in psychology and health education from the University of Lowell. She has experience with a variety of courses, including stress management and assertiveness training.

Pre-registration is required as space is limited. Call 657-3910, ext. 567 to register and for additional information.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Officer Mauriello arrested David Jewer of 29 Center St., Tewksbury at the station Wednesday afternoon on the basis of a Woburn Court default warrant. Jewer was taken directly to court.

Early Thursday morning Officer David Axelrod arrested Francis Barrett of 30 Edson St., Lowell on the basis of default warrants issued by the MDC for operating under the influence and another warrant issued by Berlin for larceny of a motor vehicle.

Around seven o'clock Thrusday Officer Paul Jepson arrested an Everett man while on Main Street. Nicola Pellegrini of 185 Main Street was taken directly to court.

Three people were arrested for public drinking at Silver Lake late Thursday afternoon. Antone Gill, of 283 Shawsheen Ave., William Brady of 7 Glen Way, Reading and Thomas Jillet of Craven Street, Methuen were all charged with public drinking and bailed for an appearance in Woburn District Court. The arrests were made by Officers Peterson, Chalifour and Richter.

At 6 p.m. Thursday Officers Richter and Chalifour arrested Donald C. Green of 107A Bridge St., Pelham after a traffic stop. Green was charged with possession of a class D controlled substance.

A short time later, the same officers arrested three young men on Jonspin Road. Thomas Hannon, 400 Andover St., and Billerica residents Kenneth Ames of 10 Argone Rd., and Philip Francis of 126 Bliecaster Road were all charged with possession of a class D controlled substance.

Robert Gallinaro of Derryfield Road, Burlington was arrested on Lowell Street Thursday evening by Officer Chalifour. Gallinaro was charged with underage possession of alcohol.

Officer Larry Juergens arrested Michael Andrews of 2 Westdale Avenue Thursday evening at Wilmington Plaza. Andrews was held on a Lowell Police Department warrant and later released to Lowell officers.

Friday night Officer Tom Miller arrested a Tewksbury motorcyclist after the operator refused to stop on signal. Daniel Small, 19 of Florence Avenue was charged with failing to stop for a police officer, speeding and improper passing.

Patrick McNally of 2 River Rd., Wilmington was arrested Sunday morning by Officers Axelrod and Farnkoff on the basis of a default warrant issued by Woburn Court.

Saturday morning Officers Jim White and Greg Farnkoff arrested two people in separate incidents on warrants. At 1:15 a.m., they arrested Arthur Saidah of 328A Cambridge St., Burlington on a state police warrant issued by Concord Court. At 2:30 they arrested Robert Kullberg of 63 Cook St., Billerica on a Wilmington warrant.

Kenneth Souza of Edgmere Street, Middleton was arrested Monday night by Officer Richter. Souza was arrested near the Regional Health Center and charged with being a disorderly person. He was held overnight to appear in court Tuesday morning.

Wilmington Little League All-Stars defeat Assabet Valley 6 to 5

Wilmington's Little League All-Stars in the 14-15 year age bracket beat the Assabet Valley All-Stars, 6 to 5 on Tuesday night.

Winning pitcher Matt McManus went the route, with seven strong innings. Hits for the winning effort came from Bobby Fleming, Mike Morris and Matt Callahan.

Their next game will be against Stoneham on Thursday at 5:45 at the North Intermediate School.

On Monday night, the 13-year-old All Stars lost to Stoneham ,12 to 3, and Arlington beat the 12-year-olds 3 to 1 in Arlington.

At the dog pound

The Wilmington dog officer does not have any dogs at the pound at the present time. She does, however, have a rabbit. The rabbit was found under a car on Gunderson Road in Hathaway Acres on Tuesday night, having been chased by dogs. The rabbit is thin, with brown and black fur. It is a domesticated rabbit.

All animals not claimed by their owners within 10 days are eligible for adoption.

The dog officer may be reached at 658-7845.

Correction

An error occurred in last week's story of a state grant for a new water tower for the town of Wilmington. The correct figure is $700,000, not $7000. The total cost of the water tower, to be built off Andover Street, is $1,400,000.

Wilmington senior topics

Call the center

With the temperature this summer registering in the high 80s and 90s, we ask all seniors to check on any elderly person living alone or with spouse. If you find they are having any difficulty living alone in their home with no air conditioning or fans, call the center.

Picnic July 21

The arts and crafts all day picnic will be held Thursday, July 21. The day will start at 10 a.m. with coffee and muffins. The barbecued chicken dinner will be served at noon.

There is a shade enclosure on the grounds but with 200 seniors attending this area will not be able to seat all those who are expected. We suggest that you take a lawn chair along. As many chairs are alike, please put your name on your's. Tickets will be given to receive your dinner, which will be turned in after you go through the line.

Diabetes testing July 28

Nurse Abbie will not give the diabetes test Thursday, July 21. It will be given on the following Thursday, July 28. Those seniors who will not be at the picnic and have to have their blood pressures taken, Abbie will be at the center to accommodate you starting at 1:30 p.m.

Nothing cancelled

We have not cancelled any of our activity programs at the center this summer. The building is air conditioned throughout, allowing seniors to exercise, and dance in comfort. Also play whist, bingo, draw, work in the craft and ceramic classes, socialize throughout the building in a cool, relaxed, pleasant atmosphere. What better way to beat this oppressive heat we are experiencing? The senior center is your building. When you don't know where to go to get cooled off, the center is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. It is located at 15 School Street. The first street on the left off Middlesex Avenue after St. Thomas Church coming from Main Street and the last street on the right before St. Thomas Church coming from North Wilmington. If you are without transportation call the center, 658-2258, 657-7595. Please remember hot weather can place a dangerous strain on an older person's body especially the heart. Don't wait too long in seeking a cool are if you do not have a cool area in your house.

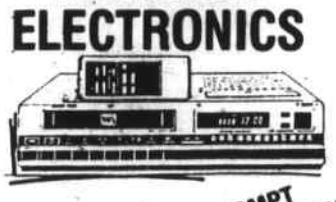

Worker shortage

With the drastic shortage of employees to fill jobs in Massachusetts, and around the country, the Federal Government is trying to attract more senior citizens to return to work on either a full or part time basis. To help retired persons to make a move to re-enter this year. The amount of money a person under the age of 65 can earn and still receive a monthly Social Security check has been increased to $6,120. For those between the age of 65 and 69, it has been increased to $8,400 a year. Over 70 there is no limit on the amount of money you can earn and receive your full Social Security check. In addition your added earnings may result in a higher Social Security check. The Social Security office will automatically refigure your benefits after the additional earnings are added to your record.

Lawn mowing

If any senior would like to have a young man mow their lawn, call the center. The price of the job will be handled between the senior and the young man.

Backyard gardening

From the mailbag and telephone:

G.B. of North Tewksbury asks, "I planted a dozen strawberry plants in May, and they promptly rotted. What did I do wrong?"

Not having seen your plants, I will speculate that your problem was probably one of the following:

1. Planting depth. This is very important with strawberries. When set into the soil too high, the roots will dry out and wither. If set too deep, the plants will rot. For best results, the tops of the crowns should be right at soil level.

2. Overwatering. Although strawberry plant roots appreciate being kept moist, they will rebel, and eventually rot, if they are muddy wet all the time. Once a week watering is usually sufficient, and a two or three inch hay or grass mulch is beneficial for water retention, weed control, and eventual soil improvement.

3. Root chewing insects. You may have set your young plants into an area infested with wireworms and/or nematodes.

It is too late to start over this year. Keep these points in mind next spring when you try again. It will do no harm to treat your soil with Diazinon granules two weeks before planting, to eliminate root chewing insects.

A letter from J.O'R. of Wilmington inquires, "My bush green beans were decimated last August by what a neighbor said was powdery mildew. Assuming he was correct, how can I keep my presently healthy looking plants from mildew this year?"

If your plants showed a grayish white, talcumlike powdery growth, then you probably did have powdery mildew. This fungus disease is fairly common with some varieties of beans when we have a combination of low soil moisture and high humidity. Mildews will probably be a concern this year, with the extremes of heat and humidity we are experiencing. I suggest that you space your plants no closer than a foot apart to allow good air circulation, for starters. Then, as we get into August keep your plants well watered, assuming we do not have a total water ban by then. This is important: to keep plant diseases from gaining a foothold, water the garden in the morning, rather than in the evening. Plants which are wet overnight are much more likely to develop diseases than those that are watered in the morning. Finally, if you care to go to the trouble, a once a week spraying with an all purpose garden fungicide through August should keep plant diseases under control. Next spring, when making out your seed order, look for Greencrop and Tendercrop green beans. These two varieties are especially resistant to powdery mildew.

Finally, a phone call from an anonymous Wilmington man who asks, "I dread the yearly onslaught of Japanese bettles. How do you control this pest in your garden?"

We should be thankful that Japanese beetles are not a serious pest in the vegetable garden. Although several ornamental shrubs and some flowers, especially roses, zinneas and geraniums, suffer from the ravages of this insect, I do not see a problem each year with damage to the vegetable garden. My own control efforts involve hanging a couple of the "Bag a Bug" traps, available in all garden supply centers. If the infestation is especially heavy, a twice a month dusting or spraying with Sevin late in the evening will reduce their numbers.

I am not especially fond of starlings, since they take about 75 percent of the suet I put out for the woodpeckers each winter. Their one redeeming quality is that they are the only bird willing to eat adult Japanese beetles, and for this, at least, I applaud them.

Next week's column will address more common midsummer gardening problems.

Awards night at Tewksbury Junior High School

A spanking new sign in bright red letters on reflective white background is now attached high on the front of Tewksbury High School. This identification to the community has been purchased with Chapter 188 School Improvement Council funds. The sign was pronduced and installed by Signs Unlimited of Tewksbury.

Members of the 1987-88 School Improvement Council were Peter Orio, parent; Sandra Geddry, parent; Rosellen Buda, parent; Elizabeth Kyle, teacher; Patricia Krol, teacher; Kevin McArdle, teacher; Charles LaBella, school committee representative and Richard Griffin, principal/chairman. New elections will be held,in the fall to choose the parent/teacher membership for next year's School Improvement Council for the Junior High school, including parents and teachers in the IGE program.

School Improvement Council funds were expended in other areas as well. A field trip to Minuteman Park, Concord, was successfully held for all eighth grade students as part of their American studies experience. This exposure was organized by Mrs. Maureen Kelley and Mrs. Patricia Krol with the cooperation of the entire staff. Transportation costs were provided by the School Improvement Council.

In addition, fifth grade students had their science and social studies programs expanded through exposure to "Whaling." The videotape and related materials of the "Voyage of the Mimi" introduced the topic. Visits from staff and the Kendall Whaling Museum to their classrooms next brought realism to this topic. Finally, the curriculum presentation was concluded when fifth grade students and teachers actually visited the Whaling Museum for a day. All costs were borne by the Junior High School's School Improvement Council.

Special Education students were transported to the New England Science Center in Worcester for an educational field trip. Staff and students enjoyed their day at this facility with admission and transportation provided by the School Improvement Council.

Expansion of audiovisual and duplicating capabilities of staff with cassette recorders, video camcorder with screens, overhead projectors, duplicator, electronic imaging system and printer for computer word processing use.

A subscription to a Current Science magazine has been provided to seventh grade science classes.

The Music Department has been provided with a synthesizer an drum set for use with the "Jazz Band."

The ropes course, part of the eighth grade physical education, has been provided with Project Adventure materials and new rope and harness equipment.

In all, $11,494 has been spent to enhance programmatic and instructional areas through Chapter 188 funding. The school Improvement Council looks forward to serving these additional needs with funding provided directly by the state legislature.

This list is evidence of the wide and a varied use of these supplementary monies.

On June 23, the 25th annual awards assembly was featured for all grade seven and eight students in Tewksbury Junior High School. The band and performing glee club performed before and during the award presentations.

The following students were presented letters of commendation by the principal for perfect attendance for 1987-88 school year: William Brady, Eldrina Brown, Arthur Cerullo, Diane Duquette, Roy Fabila, Naresh Gajera, Kristin Godin, Kristin Karlberg, Nicole Lecuyer, Kevin Maher, Matthew Martino, Megan McBrine, Peter McCarthy, Kenneth Rogers, Lisa Saber, Jeffrey Venuti and Tina Willess.

Marilyn Garrett, grade seven student, daughter of Charles and Karen Garrett of Charles Drive, was presented the only certificate of academic excellence for having attained all A's on at least one report card. All other students who have previously been published on honor roll listings earlier this year received their certificate of excellence from the principal at this time.

While slides of the last school dance (Farewell to the eighth grade) and Camp Becket ropes weekend were shown on the large screen, the Glee Club sang appropriate melodies.

Mrs. Locker, advisor, presented awards to members of this year's Math League team. Mrs. Malone also presented awards to those students whose drawings were part of the annual art festival held at the high school in April. Mrs. McDade presented awards to members of this year's mentorship program (gifted and talented students).

A very special, unique award wask presented for the first time at this assembly program by the Tewksbury Men's Soccer League President, Edward Flanagan. This award, in memory of Jason Masser, former eighth grade student, killed in a bicycle accident November 1, 1984, was awarded by Steven Levine, high school varsity soccer coach. This soccer scholarship was given to Nicholas Fiore, son of A. Ralph and Sally Firoe of Lancaster Drive, grade eight student, who will attend soccer camp this summer tuition free.

The newly formed jazz band entertained the audience using several pieces of equipment recently purchased by the School Improvement Council.

Mr. Yeager, social studies department head, made a special presentation gift to Mrs. Krol and Mrs. Kelley in gratitude for their efforts in organizing the recent successful field trip to Minuteman Park for all eighth grade students.

Qualified eighth grade students who exhibited superior effort, were presented home arts awards by their teachers, Mrs. Hansberry.

Ms. Carey, librarian, extended gratitude to those students who assisted with work in the library.

Mr. Zbieg, prime mover of a number of activities including the eight school dances held this year, awarded certificates to participants in Student Council, the school newspaper (re-instituted for the firsst time in many years) and the newly formed Racing Car Club.

The program concluded with the issuance of Presidential Academic Fitness Awards to the following eighth graders: Gold certificate (students who attained a composite of 80 percent or better on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills adn a grade point average of 5.0 or better for three terms), Julie Barker, Gregory Carter, Robert Coughlin, Robert Craven, Jennifer Dykens, Erika Feick, Michael Garabedian, Kerry Gravelle, David Huse, Danielle Langlois, Sara Masters, Robin McCaffery, David McGill, Carolyn Merritt, Peter O'Callaghan, Robert Seichter, Stacey Sipowicz, Sara Smith, Jeffrey Venuti, Beth Vincent and David Whitman; silver certificates (students who attained a composite of 80 percent and a grade point average greater than 4.7), William Dooley, Meredith LeDuc, James O'Connell, Lori Salmeri and Christine Winslow; blue certificates (students who attained a composite of 80 percent and a grade point average greater than 4.5), Mary Brady, Debra Higgins, Caroline Kondoleon, Kevin Maher, Steven Previte and Julianne Taylor.

At the conclusion, the jazz band played again as students boarded their buses for the long summer vacation. Eighth grade students will wend their way through the halls of Tewksbury Memorial High school, Shawsheen Tech and area private schools next fall.

This marked the 25th awards assembly held at Tewksbury Junior High School, built and opened in 1963. In commemoration of the fact, photographic memories of this year were made into a silver anniversary yearbook. These books contain individual pictures of each eighth grade student and group pictures of seventh grade IGE (grades five and six) homerooms. Unfortunately, approximately 150 students who ordered books have not made payment. Books are available at the Tewksbury Junior High School for $6 per copy, if parents wish to make a purchase of this silver anniversary yearbook.

Reunion

Dan Gillis called the Town Crier on Saturday afternoon to invite a photographer to take pictures of a reunion of the VanSteensburg family, being held at his house. The 82 people present were descendants of the VanSteensburg family which once lived on Hobson Avenue in Wilmington. Four members of that family are pictured above -- Ruth Pugh of Virginia, Grace Wicks of Florida, H.S. VanSteensburg of Cape Cod and Florida, and Mildred Gillis.

Surprise

What Mr. and Mrs. Gillis did not realize about the VanSteensburg reunion was that it was also their 50th anniversary party. The reunion ran all afternoon, and it was not until other guests began arriving at 6 p.m. that Dan and Mildred learned of the second reason for the party. They are shown above looking at old photographs with their great-granddaughter, Kristin Hosmer, and grandson, Danny D'Angelo.

PAIN? TRY GENTLE CHIROPRACTIC!

Hi, I'm Dr. Thomas Sheehan. Perhaps gentleness in chiropractic is a new concept to you; it was to me before I began the six years of college training necessary for my doctorate degree. During those six years I learned the precise locations where light pressure can bring chiropractic relief to pain. If you have hesitated visiting a chiropractor, perhaps you didn't know about this gentle or "soft touch" technique.

Linda Looney receives award from JFK library

Linda Looney, a middle school teacher at the Next Wave School in Somerville and a Wilmington native, has been awarded a $500 prize by the John F. Kennedy Library for her work in teaching about the pursuit of peace. Ms. Looney worked closely with her students to define war and peace and to examine their feelings of aggression, prejudice, fear, and stereotypes to better understand themselves and how these sentiments shape social values and behavior.

To learn about the arms race, the class studied Communism, World War II, the Soviet Union, and nuclear issues. The lessons culminated in a simulated international news broadcast in which students discussed the Soviet Union, Korea, Vietnam, and Iran. In addition, the extensive use of newspapers kept the class informed of current events while they learned about the homes of their international penpals.

Ms. Looney received her prize at an awards luncheon held at the Kennedy Library on June 9. She was one of seven Massachusetts teachers honored for outstanding curriculum development on topics relating to the theme "In Pursuit of Peace."

The prizes were awarded as part of the annual "Kennedy Library awards for Outstanding Teaching." This project was established in 1984 to recognize Massachusetts teachers for creative and effective classroom work and to support curriculum development on a variety of topics and issues in American Government, politics and history. As part of the Kennedy Library's commemoration of the 1963 limited test ban treaty, prizes were awarded for work on such topics as conflict resolution, disarmament, U.S.-Soviet relations, and global war and peace.

Financial support for this project has been provided to the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation by the Arthur F. Blanchard Trust, administered by the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company.

White Sox edge Royals for title

In a classic Little League contest, the Tewksbury American League White Sox captured the Town Championship by narrowly defeating the two time defending champion National League Royals by a score of 2-1.

The game was highlighted by the outstanding pressure pitching of Jay Mackey of the White Sox and Mike Correia of the Royals.

The first run scored when Jay Mackey doubled home the Sox Kevin Andriolo, who had walked to lead off the game.

The second run came in the fifth inning when the Sox Don Bibo singled and later scored with some hustling, heads-up base running making the score 2-0.

Mike Correia of the Royals garnered the only hit, and run, off Mackey leading off the top of the sixth - a towering homerun to leftfield making the score 2-1.

The next two Royals reached base, but Mackey bore down, ending the game by striking out the last two Royals batters in an outstanding clutch performance.

Key defensive plays were turned in by the Sox' Brandon Wagner and Don Bibo.

White Sox coaches Joe Andriolo, Peter August, and Brian Andriolo wish to congratulate the entire White Sox team for an outstanding season.

White Sox players include Don Bibo, Jay Mackey, Steve Schmidt, Brandon Wagner, Charlie Bailey, Chris Bibo, Adam Fuller, Brian Gangemi, Kevin Andriolo, Jimmy Graham, Andy Rubin and Kevin Schmidt.

Hold on to your hats

Sunday's Wilmington Farm League All-Star game featured some wild action on the basepaths. See other photos in this week's sports section.

Summer track

Runners ignore heat

In spite of warm temperatures and high humidity, the second Tewksbury track meet of the summer season was well attended.

With the help of Mrs. Takach, who did all the scorekeeping and ribbon awarding, and timers Mark Christoffels, Jack Donahue and Tom, the meet went very well.

Many boys and girls, men and women earned ribbons in the various categories. The next all-comers summer meet will be Thursday, July 14 with meets on the 21st and 28th to follow. All meets begin at 6 p.m. at the high school track.

Mader gets tryout

Former Tewksbury High School catcher Chris Mader has been invited by the U.S. Baseball Federation for a 10 day all expense paid tryout in Sioux Falls, S.D. to make the U.S. Junior Olympic Baseball Team. Chris was one of only 64 athletes selected from over 17,000 considered throughout the United States.

There will be four teams from each region, the east, west, north and south areas of the United States to compete in a medal round robin tournament, with only 18 players selected to represent the United States in Australia in December.

All-Stars start Thursday

The Wilmington Senior League Girls' Softball All-Stars (13-15) will host Woburn at Rotary Park Thursday, July 14 at 5:45 p.m. This year's contingent is a young, but talented and spirited group.

Leading the Stars into action this year will be 15-year-olds Punky Madden (p-3b), Deana Cardinale (c-of), Becky Powers (1b-of) and Ann Marie Casey (p-3b).

The 14-year-olds who are a very impressive group and who will be depended upon for some solid play are led by Diane Sullivan (1b-of), Jen Rago (ss), Judy O'Connell (c-p), Joy Michaud (of), Tina Kelly (2b-of), Terri Woods (2b-of), Millie Cavanaugh (of) and Kerry Cunio (2b-ss).

The talented but inexperienced 13-year-old group that will be counted on for solid backup and key situational play are led by Nicole Ouellette, Kerri Lyman and Lee Iannachino.

The All-Stars are managed by Harry Powers and are hoping for some fine support Thursday night.

Farm League All-Star

Reds' pitcher Mike Barry displays fine form early in Sunday afternoon's Wilmington Farm League All-Star game. Wilmington Little Leaguers are now gearing up for the All-Star Tournaments.

Astros extend streak

Mon., June 27: The Astros extended their winning streak to three, posting a 3-1 win over the Peter Fuller Club of Belmont.

Former WHS pitcher Mark Bartnick (3-3) fired a strong three-hitter in his first route going performance of 1988.

Bartnick walked two, while allowing only an unearned run in the last of the first.

The Astros tallied single runs in the first and fifth innings in one of the better games played in the ICL this season. Jim Adamson paced the six hit Wilmington attack with a pair of singles.

Thurs., June 30: Rain postponed the Astros game with DelVecchio's in Somerville. This

Angels complete perfect season

Angels 13 Padres 1

It was Carrie Tarantino's turn to pitch a one-hitter while striking out 11 as the hard hitting Angels came up with 13 hits.

Biggest hitter for the Angels was again Carrie Tarantino with two homers and two singles, knocking in five runs.

Also hitting well were Nicole Dussault (two hits), Leanne Tarantino (triple), Jenn Murray (double), Jenn Adley, Jackie Hayden and Tracy Reitchel.

For the Padres, Laurie Southmayd and Darlene Pilcher had fine defensive games and Lisa Southmayd had their only hit.

Angels 15 Mariners 4

Coming into their final game the hard hitting Angels knew they had their work cut out for them to come up with an undefeated season. The Mariners were in second place and playing very well.

Jenn Murray delivered another fine pitching performance, giving up just one hit but walking 11.

Defensively, Carrie Tarantino (homer and double), Leanne Tarantino (double, single), Kristine Cardinale (two singles), and singles by Nicole Dussault, Jackie Hayden, Jenn Murray, Paula Barrett, Kristin Roache, and Tracy Reitchel led to the big victory.

Defensively, Kristina Cullen, Angela Cardinale, Darlene Scarfo, and Jenn Adley played sparkling in the field.

The Mariners only hit was by Kristi Lyman, and pitching duties were shared by Amy O'Melia, Kristi Lyman and Stacy Gillis.

Manager Paul Tarantino and coach Dick Hyden would like to thank the hard hitting Angels, Little League girls softball champions, for all their hard work and dedication that enabled them to have a great undefeated (15-0) season.

Conlin named head coach

Former Wilmington High School quarterback Bob Conlin was recently named head football coach at East Longmeadow High School.

The WHS graduate of 1972 attended Springfield College and for the past several years he has taught physical education at East Longmeadow.

Conlin has coached junior varsity basketball and was the backfield coach with the varsity football squad prior to being named to the top job.

Bob's parents are Bob and Evelyn Conlin of 13 Gundersen Road, Wilmington.

game will be made up later in the season.

Fri., July 1: The Wakefield Merchants belted the Astros, 6-1 to snap the Wilmington club's three game unbeaten skein.

Lefthander Larry Thomas (2-1) suffered his first loss of the summer season allowing eight hits and four runs in six innings.

Shortstop Chris Wnek led the mild Astro attack with a pair of singles.

Wed., July 6: The Peter Fuller Club topped the Astros, 7-4 at the North to open the second half of the ICL season.

Tim Budrewicz (2-3-1) walked three batters in the second inning as the Fuller Club belted four hits and scored a total of six runs.

Veteran righthander Joe Pulco came on to hurl three shutout innings, but manager Bob Dicey's nine could not catch up.

Steve Indingaro (3-3) and Paul Matchun (2-3) led the Astros' offense.

Thurs., July 7: Augustine's broke open a close 2-1 game, scoring three runs with two outs in the last of the fifth at the expense of starter Mark Bartnick (3-4).

The Wilmington pitcher turned in a creditable five innings of work, however, the Astros left seven runners on base in the first three innings, which did not help the cause.

Former Tewksbury high school athlete Scott Bolton drove in two runs with a bases loaded walk in the first and a two out single in the seventh. Chris Wnek chipped in with a pair of hits and an RBI.

Fri., July 8: Dave Woods cracked a pair of homers, and P.J. McCabe clubbed a three-run round tripper to pace the Astros to a 5-2 win over Augustine's of Malden to snap a three game losing streak.

Larry Thomas (3-1) went the distance on the hill for the Astros, allowing seven hits while whiffing seven.

Sun., July 10: The first place Andre Realty Club exploded for six runs in the fourth inning enroute to an 8-0 drubbing of the Astros at the North.

Jim Moynihan and P.J. McCabe had the only two hits off the servings of Salem Street hurler Dave Marsters.

Todd Knezovic (0-4) allowed seven hits and three earned runs in three and two-thirds innings of work. Joe Pulco pitched well in relief (three and a third) once again to raise the hopes for the remaining 11 games in the season as the Astros hope to improve upon their 6-14-1 ICL record.

Upcoming games: Wed., July 13, 6 p.m., at the North; Astros vs Grannan; Thurs., July 14, 6 p.m., Astros at Somerville Elms; Fri., July 15, A's at Chelmsford, 6 p.m.; Sun., July 17, Astros vs Augustine's 6 jp.m. at the North; Mon., July 18, A's vs Burlington, 6 p.m. at the North; Astros at Melrose, 8 p.m.

Sports deadline

The Town Crier sports deadline is Monday night at 6 p.m. Any copy received after that deadline will not be included in that week's sports section.

Rec coming events

Concerts

The Recreation Department's last concert of the season will be presented Wednesday, July 13 and will feature the big band music of the Continentals.

Sponsors of this concert include F&R Auto Supply, Compugraphic, MassBank for Savings, Analog Device and Moore Employment.

Trips

The Recreation Department's weekly trips to Hampton Beach are once again popular with teenagers.

Each Tuesday the group is bussed to the beach and back for a $5 roundtrip fee. Those wishing to be assured of a seat on the upcoming trips should make reservations in the Rec office soon.

Other trip possibilities for this age group include Canobie Lake, Salisbury Beach and Water Country in Portsmouth, N.H.

Sports clinics

Signup is now talking place for the baseball and soccer sport clinics for boys and girls ages eight through 12. Both clinics are conducted by WHS varsity coach Dick Scanlon.

The baseball clinic will be held from 9 to 11 a.m., July 18-22; the soccer clinic will take place from 9 to 11 a.m. July 25-29.

These clinics, which stress the very basic skills, will be held at the Glen Road Recreation Area. Cost is $15 per clinic. Sign up in the Rec office between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

John Doherty Clinic

This summer the popular John Doherty Baseball Clinic will be coming to Wilmington August 4 and 5 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

John Doherty is a former Major League player and is currently regarded as one of the finest hitting instructors in the country.

John and his staff will conduct a two day, eight hour intensive clinic for youngsters ages 12 and under and will be held at the Glen Road Recreation Area.

Cost is $25. Register at the Rec office between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Glen Road playground

The Glen Road playground has just completed the first successful week of its' six week summer program.

The program runs from July 6 through August 18. The festive opening week was marked by funtastic first week ctivities.

The children participated in a scavenger hunt, a kickball competition and a drawing contest.

The children have named their playground "The Wildcat Playground" and they have chosen their playground colors, which are red and blue.

This week, July 11-15, many exciting events are planned such as arts and crafts, field trips to the Stoneham Zoo and Kidsplace, a crazy day and a bingo tournament.

Playground leaders this year include Ellen Grinder, Kellie Kavanaugh, Brian Kane and Diane Flaherty.

Discounts

Planning a trip to the Orlando area? The Recreation Department has discounts for a number of attractions in Florida, including Magic Kingdom, Sea World and Busch Gardens. Stop by to see what's available.

Other discounts available are Riverside Park, Canobie Lake Park, Whalom Park and Showcase Cinemas.

Special needs camp

The Recreation Department's summer day camp for special needs children is now open at Camp 40 acres.

This day camp is for Wilmington youths and provides a wholesome mixture of outdoor activities, field trips, swimming, games, crafts, singing and campfire fun.

Regsiter in the Rec. office Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. or call 658-4270 to have a registration form sent to you. Camp began Wednesday, June 29.

Boston to Provincetown

For the most delightful full day excursion you'll find, enjoy the fun and sun of a cruise to colorful Provincetown aboard the large, comfortable Provincetown II. Her three spacious decks offer open, enclosed and covered areas to insure comfort in all weather.

A sparking galley and live entertainment add to the pleasure of enjoying the sun, sights and sea breeze during the cruise. In Provincetown you can explore the cape's most interesting shops and beautiful beaches. Sign up any weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The date is Wednesday, July 20 and we will leave the Swain School at 8 a.m., returning at 7:30 p.m. Cost is $25 per person.

Recreation VCR tapes

The Recreation Department has several new vcr tapes to loan to the public at no charge. In addition to fly fishing and canoeing, now available are tapes on Hawaii, the Best of the Caribbean, Baseball the Pete Rose Way, the Soccer Video and Kathy Smith's Winning Workout.

Tewksbury's skating star

Babine earns gold medal

Tewksbury's Leanne Babine will begin her collegiate life with one of the most balanced and respected scholastic and athletic backgrounds in the Merrimack Valley.

Leanne was an honor roll student at Tewksbury High School, captain of the basketball team, co-captain of the softball team and a member of the Haydenette Ice Skating Precision Team from Lexington.

Leanne has taken professional skating lessons since age 10 and recently reached the most exciting moment of her career - her team won the gold medal at the National competiton in Reno, Nevada.

The Haydenettes, coached by Lynn Benson, is a Senior Division team of 24 skaters. Leanne was a single competitor before joining the Haydenettes in 1984. They have been medalists in every sectional and national competition they have entered.

The team has also competed in many international competitions attended by teams from Japan and Australia as well as Canada. The Olympic Committee is considering prescision skating as a category in the 1992 Olympics.

This talented group of skaters has been invited to perform at the Christmas tree lighting ceremony at Rockerfeller Center, Boston's Ice Chips and other local shows.

Leanne has been accepted at the University of Lowell to pursue a career in accounting.

Leanne will be skated a solo in addition to the team performance on May 13, 14 and 15 at the annual Skating Show, held at Hayden Recreation Center, Lexington.

Proud father and his pupils

Dan Lynn, father and trainer of Susannah and Stephen, stands proudly with the talented youngters who will be competing in the Junior Olympics later this summer. See story this page.

Samaritan Tennis Open

The Sheraton Rolling Green Tennis Club will host the Seventh Annual Samaritan Tennis Open starting Friday, August 26 and winding up on Sunday, the 28th.

The tournament, which is open to the general public, will benefit the Samaritans of Merrimack Valley, the 24 hour suicide prevention and befriending service for the Merrimack Valley and southern New Hampshire.

There will be two divisions for both men and women, arranged according to playing level, A's and B's. There will be singles, doubles and mixed doubles category, with a limit of one singles and one doubles event only.

There is a $20 singles entry fee and $25 for a doubles team. If playing in both events the total fee is $32.50 per individual.

Entry forms are available at most local sporting goods stores, tennis clubs, or from the Samaritans (688-6612), 55 Jackson St., Lawrence, MA 01840.

For further information, call tournament director Joe Rugieri, (686-5013). Proceeds from the tournament will help continue the work of the Samaritans, who responded to over 32,000 calls last year.

Junior Olympians

Susannah Lynn and her brother Stephen display just some of their karate skills as they prepare for this summer's Junior Olympics.

Wilmington's Junior Olympians

Two local youngsters will attend this summer's Junior Olympic Games to be held August 11-13 in Lawrence, Kansas.

Stephen Lynn, 13 and sister Susannah, 11 of Wilmington have been selected to take part in the events sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Stephen, a black belt with over six years of training, won the bronze medal during the 1986 national Competition in Atlanta, Georgia.

Susannah, a senior brown belt with over five years of training, was the 1985 AAU national champion and gold medalist. Both students study the Shotokan style of Karate at the Woburn YMCA.

A travel fund has been set up to aid Stephen and Susannah with trip expenses. Persons interested in supporting them may send contributions to the Northeast Karate Travel Fund, 6 Gowing Road, Wilmington, Ma. 01887.

Free fishing tackle

by Bill Conlon

That's right. Absolutely free, and just waiting for you to pick it up.

Where? Everywhere! Any place that has water and fish will have free tackle, just for you.

All you need do is look for it.

The most common type of free fishing tackle is the humble bobber. Look through a patch of shoreline brush long enough and you'll find at least one bobber. Just reach down and pick it up, and you have free gear.

Don't laugh. There's more lost fishing tackle out there than you might imagine. I've picked up at least 50 bobbers in my career, but there's much more than simple bobbers out there. MUCH more!

Just this spring, on a day that was too windy for fishing for my taste, I instead cruised slowly along the windblown shoreline, looking for lures. In a half-hour I found three Jitterbugs and a triple-hook Rapala, although the hooks had rusted off two of the plugs. Still, I'd rather spend a few pennies for new hooks than $5 apiece for new Jitterbugs!

What happens is this: Somebody snags his lure on a lily pad and the line snaps. He can't find it in all the murk and weeds, so he just writes it off. It just happens.

In the winter, when the lily pads die and sink to the bottom, the plug floats free and, sometimes, gets locked in the ice. Come spring the plug works free and floats to the nearest shoreline. Then it's yours.

Every time I see a brush pile, I'll take a look. Seven out of ten times, there's something of value there.

Any stream with trout, and quite a few without, may be a virtual gold mine for lost trout flies. On any stretch of the stream, scan the nearby branches as you go. Fly rod enthusiasts sometimes don't want to risk crossing the current just to fetch a fly, and other times they just can't find it in all the leaves.

But at two bucks a pop, those flies start getting expensive after you lose a few! Two-thirds of the flies in my box came from stream-side tree branches.

On one trout stream I once came up with a bonanza in fishing lures. Big handfuls of them! What a day!

On the Squanacook River out in Townsend, there's one big pool that sees a lot of activity, as measured, sadly, by all the litter on the shore. One summer day, I put on mask and flippers and dove in. What I found made my eyes widen ...

One big log, lying on the bottom in the middle of the pool, literally sparkled with spinners, plugs and hooks. It took six dives to retrieve it all, but I came away with both hands full of free lures.

Similar logs have been snagging lures and hooks for years, and I'll bet you can think of at least one in the area ... like maybe in Silver Lake near Main Street? Eh?

Snorkeling in your fishing hole offers more than just free tackle, but that's another story for another time. (Maybe next week ...)

Big-league free tackle -- stuff like rods, reels, full tackle boxes and free boat motors -- is harder to get, but the effort can pay for itself.

Just as fishermen lose their lures, so too do boats sometimes capsize. True fact, but a sad one. If you know where a boat or canoe went over, you might be able to retrieve the lost gear.

I can think of three such salvage sites, just off the top of my head. My brother, Kevin, lost all of his gear two years ago when his canoe flipped on Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester. Rods, box, all there.

Just this spring, while fishing at Peter's Pond in Dracut, I watched three beer-drinking boys roll over one of those Coleman "Crawdad" plastic boats. They lost rods, reels, tackle boxes, a marine battery, and even a pair of pants with a set of keys and a wallet with $200 in it. Near as I can tell, those treasures are still lying in the muck.

A third salvage site just came to my attention this past week. Eddie Silva, who owns Wildside sports in North Wilmington, said his canoe was swamped by a power boat on the Concord River a few days back. The canoe flipped, and Eddie's shoe got caught in the bracket of his electric motor, but he luckily got his foot free without drowning.

Eddie said he retrieved his rod, because he was fishing with a shiner and bobber, so he just snatched up the bobber and pulled in the rod. But his tackle box wasn't so lucky.

What you need for heavy-duty salvage work is a "fishing" magnet and a length of rope, though mask and flippers can do the trick. The Edmund Scientific Corp., out of Great Barrington, New Jersey, is the only place I can think of that sells big magnets, but there may be others. Please let me know if there is somewhere closer, because I need a big magnet, post haste.

The best way to go magnet fishing is to use a "ten-pound" pull magnet on a rope, and drag it slowly across the bottom. Every so often, or if you feel any resistance, you haul it up and see what you "caught." A tackle box full of $5 lures will pay for the magnet in no time.

By all rights, you should return tackle to the rightful owner, but more often than not you don't even know who lost it. For instance, if I ever find those sunken pants in Peter's Pond, I'm honor-bound to return the guy's keys and wallet, cash included, if I find his license.

But if all I can find is his new baitcasting rod, a full tackle box and a cooler full of beer, well ...

Happy hunting.

-- Tackle Box --

Dan's Bait & Tackle in Tyngsboro held a fishing derby on Lake Mascuppic on Sunday morning, and some 96 anglers turned out. Not a bad showing at all, considering it was Dan's first-ever contest.

Dual cash prizes were offered for the top three bass and pickerel, but the pickerel prizes went back into the kitty. There were no, repeat no, legal pickerel caught. But the bass were more cooperative:

Top prize of $300 went to Dave Noel of Lowell for a 3-pound-11 specimen; second and $150 went to Lowell's Mike Miller for a bass that weighed 3-10 (close, eh?); while third and $50 went to Lowell's Tony Espinola for a 3-4 fish.

Wilmington's "Chad" Sokolowski brought four fish to the weighing table, out of only 15 bass taken in the whole derby. Chad's fish didn't finish in the money, though. Oops.

There's a Greater Lowell Fly Fisher's members-only bass-only derby set for this Sunday on the Concord River, out of the Bedford ramp.

I didn't get a column ready for last week, sorry to say, because my wife has been in the hospital for serious reasons for almost three weeks now, and last week I guess I just sort of "burned out" from all the stress. Mary Ann appears to have turned the corner, though, so things are finally looking up. Sorry I missed, though.

Sleeping in this awful humidity has been close to impossible, so I've taken to late-night bass-fishing trips to avoid the heat. In the past week I've noticed that the bass become most active around 2 a.m., and the action stays hot until sunrise. No real big ones yet, but I've had some near misses that were WILD!

I probably shouldn't do this, but I will anyway: Lowell's Bob Russell, who took the biggest bass in the recent March of Dimes derby on the Merrimack River, says he's in hot pursuit of a bass that he claims must weigh at least 12 pounds! All he'd say about the monster's hide-out was one word -- "Tyngsboro." Bob said the monster bit the back treble off one of his plugs the other day, and twice snapped his line.

Rumor has it from a number of anglers that such a whopper bass is lurking in Lake Mascuppic, but that remains to be seen -- and weighed. It could be Bob's, but I suspect yet another pond ... hmmmm.

From wheelchair to horseback rider to jailer

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

No one moves in the Rockingham County Jail without Jim Campbell's say-so. A North Reading native and former Reading resident and Town Meeting member, Master Control Operator Campbell is in charge of all the doors and cameras in the New Hampshire facility.

But Campbell's not into that kind of power at all. He lives in North Hampton now, attends school two nights a week and is working his way toward becoming a police dispatcher. Eventually, he hopes to represent the Rockingham County Police in the schools there, talking to kids about strangers, strange cars, child abuse, and the like.

He sure is good with kids. He's already had a lot of experience with whole classes full in Reading, talking to them about attitudes and answering their questions. He captivates them with tales of his exploits on horseback and numerous other adventures - fishing, swimming, playing basketball, judging horse shows.

He delights them with images of his two ponies, two horses, seven barn cats, two dogs, and the little pigmy goat he used to have.

Those wheelies he performs - they're kind of fun to watch and squeal about, too. But what really captures the attention of all his young audiences is the gentle manner in which Campbell invites questions - after he explains why he's telling his tales from a wheelchair.

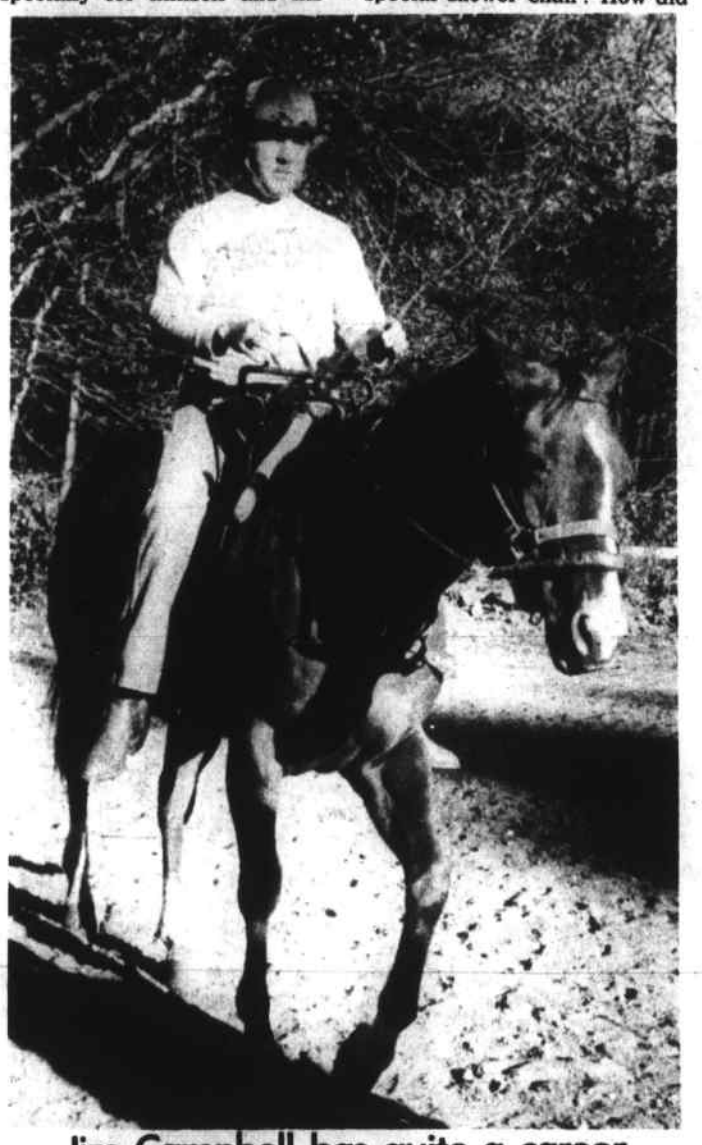

"I'm sitting in this chair because I broke my back in 1967 when I was 20 years old. I've been in this chair for 21 years," he says. "I was in Vietnam helping put wires back on a pole during a storm. I fell about two stories and flattened the bones in my spinal cord - that's the message center to my legs.

"You know how you can suck on a straw and the soda will come up to your mouth," he says to the third graders at Reading's Birch Meadow School. "What if you pinched the straw? The messages run from my brain and stop here - my feeling line is right at the belly button."

The Understanding Handicaps program for which he's a guest speaker is aimed at third and fourth graders because they're so candid and curious, enthusiastic and ready to learn.

Campbell tells the kids about what it's like to use a wheelchair, the house he built specially for himself and his chair, how he takes a shower. And the questions begin.

"How do you get into the special shower chair? How did you drive here? " ask the kids.

Jim Campbell has quite a career

"To change chairs, I get into bed and I sit on the edge," says Campbell. "I have to make sure my arms and shoulders stay very strong because I'm lifting myself all the time. When I get into my car, I go next to the seat and then I lift my legs up and put them in the car."

The nine-year-olds know no embarrassment; ask whatever comes to mind; absorb what they hear, follow it up and explore. "Will you ever get to use your legs again or is it permanent? "

Campbell answers directly, in details and examples they readily understand. "My disability is permanent. It's been 21 years and nothing has changed. It's like I cut my spinal cord."

He asks rhetorical questions from time to time also, using them as a vehicle to stimulate more from the kids. "Did I ever have an operation to try to fix the problem? Yes, when I was first hurt. But nothing is going to change unless the doctors can do something with computers. "It didn't stop my life," he continues, introducing a message which becomes clearer and clearer. "I had to learn how to do things all over again in a different way - like when you go from a tricycle to a two-wheeler."

"How can you get dressed? " they query.

"You know what it's like to bend over and touch your toes without bending your knees," he says. "I had to learn to stretch out my muscles enough so when I'm sitting in bed, I can

They came one night last week. One of those miserably hot and steamy nights. The invasion started innocuously enough: I was trying to sleep, as the big fan in my bedroom window speedily hummed away, when suddenly I felt — then heard — the familiar approach of summer's most dreaded micromonster. A mosquito was attempting to suck a gutful of my blood out of my left ear. In a half-daze, not actually wide awake, but not even close to slipping into a deep REM-filled state of bliss, I took a swipe at the tiny creature. I didn't expect to capture him, just ward him off.

Yeah, as if a wave of the hand is really going to stop him from making another pass at my ear, I thought. I waited for him to return, but miraculously, he didn't. I resumed my efforts at falling to sleep. Even with the cool flow of air winding over my bed and around my room, the fan was unsuccessful at diminishing the humidity, and it was that that truly prevented me — and probably half the world on this night — from drifting off.

I thought about putting that big air conditioner of mine in the window. Certainly it would do the trick, but then I dismissed the idea, realizing that it would more than likely be a waste of energy, since my roof was missing and the AC's condenser would probably heat up so fast that the cold air would quickly be reduced to just more warm air being blown around the room. At least the big fan felt cool, even if it was really just circulating the night air.

I am in the midst of remodeling the upstairs of my house, which explains why I have no roof at the moment. The carpenters were hard at work ripping the roof off that day, and tomorrow they would begin constructing a new full-shed dormer, beneath which would eventually be a new bedroom for me. In the meantime, I would have to simply put up with the inconvenience of no roof, and of course, the heavy, early-summer night air.

And on something I hadn't

Stay-cool tips for the elderly

Massachusetts Secretary of Elder Affairs Paul J. Lanzikos cautions elders to stay out of the heat and to heed stay-cool tips.

"Hot weather can place a dangerous strain on your body, especially your heart," said Secretary Lanzikos. "Elders might also be at greater risk of heart exhaustion when certain medications, such as aspirin and antihistamines, interrupt the body's automatic reflex to cool itself. Consult your doctor immediately if you experience a sudden rise in body temperature, muscle contraction, or rapid breathing."

Secretary Lanzikos offered the following tips to stay cool:

—Find a cool spot, such as a cool room in your home, an air conditioned shopping mall, senior center, library or movie;

—Draw cool air into your home with a fan. Air movement may reduce heat stress by helping to remove excess body heat;

—Take a cool bath or shower;

—Drink plenty of fluids whether or not you feel thirsty. Avoid alcoholic and caffeinated drinks; they interfere with your body's attempts to cool itself;

—Wear light clothing. Wear a hat or use an umbrella to protect your head when outdoors;

—Slow down. Physical activity produces body heat.

"Most victims of heat stress are elders. With a buddy system, lives may be saved. Check in on elder friends, neighbors and family members," advised Secretary Lanzikos. "Do not ignore the early warning signs of heat stress, such as general discomfort, lack of energy or loss of appetite. Seek appropriate assistance before the strain of the heat becomes too great."

Freedom Weekend for alcohol victims

Have you or someone you know been raised in a home with alcoholic parents, chronic illness, or severe emotional or physical abuse?

Are you currently living with an alcoholic or a family member who is involved with drugs?

Oftentimes in families where these dependencies exist, there is great pain, and troubled adults are bred. Victims frequently suffer from low self-esteem, loss of identity and debilitating dependence on others for approval.

Freedom Weekends provide a "safe place" to begin to share these hurts with others who have had the same experiences. The goal of these weekends is to address the pain of childhood losses so that the healing process can begin.

Father Jack McGinnis, a priest of 25 years and the product of a home in which both parents were addicted to alcohol, conducts the workshops, and tells the story of his own healed brokenness. He sees the weekend as a breakthrough or beginning for some, and a continuation of the healing process for others.

In the lifelong struggle of healing family hurts, a Freedom Weekend can provide a bridge between alcohol counseling programs and Christian prayer. It is not for those currently addicted to alcohol or drugs.

Fr. Jack discusses Denial, Getting Your History Straight, Shame — the Power of Caring, Grieving and Co-Dependency.

Freedom Weekends have been offered throughout the United States and are now being sponsored on the North Shore by Food for the Poor, Inc. The first weekend is being held from Friday evening July 22 through Sunday, July 24 at the Lynnfield House on the Commons, Lynnfield, Center. You may register to attend the Freedom Weekend or receive further information by calling 334-4444.

The Boston Beanstalks

Tall people meet at Colonial Hilton

People tell stories all day long — some are long and some are short — some are pretty boring and some you never forget — but this one is the tallest story ever to be told in Boston or anywhere near the Hub for that matter.

On August 12, 13, and 14, there will be a tall happening at the Colonial Hilton Hotel in Wakefield like you have never seen before. A collection of tall people from coast to coast will be attending a weekend of fun and relaxation right here in historic Boston. This weekend event will be hosted by the Boston Beanstalks Tall Club. A rather appropriate name since the main qualification is that men must be 6' 2" or taller and women must be 5' 10" or taller in addition to being at least 21 years of age with ages averaging between 25 and 45. This is a social club to enable tall active people to meet and enjoy the company of their peers with the theme focusing on tall awareness. Boston's motto is "tall people have higher standards."

The Boston Beanstalks are only five and a half years old and already has 350 members and growing as we speak. Gone are the days when all they heard was "How's the weather up there?" or "I bet you played basketball." Now these same tall people get together and discuss the many advantages of being tall by making it work for them in a positive way.

The Boston Beanstalks are also members of Tall Club International, an organization formed in 1939 by Kay Sumner Einfeldt, now consisting of 50 member clubs throughout the country. Kay to this day is still very active in promoting tall awareness. At the annual TCI convention to be held this year in Los Angeles in July over 400 tall people attend from coast to coast including Europe and Canada. The new Miss Tall International and our own Miss Tall BBTC — Melon Labonte — will be lovely tall additions to the Boston weekend.

If you are interested in finding out more about the Boston Beanstalks Tall Club and this exciting weekend, please call the Club at 617-HUB-TALL 9482-8255).

Life is too short not to be tall!!

Wakefield Recycling group invites area participation

WAKEFIELD — The Wakefield Recycling Committee (WRC) invites all thrifty citizens of Burlington, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Winchester and Woburn to bring their bundled or bagged newspapers, phone books, magazines and computer paper to the paper drive on Saturday and Sunday, July 16 and 17, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., rain or shine, at the Junior High, 525 Main Street, Wakefield. (Eyeglasses for the Wakefield Lions Club are also gratefully accepted.)

The WRC started the drives in March of 1984. Since that time, there have been 52 monthly drives, held on the third weekend of every month. In 52 drives, over 2,900 tons of recycled paper has been collected; the paper has sold for over $40,000.00; dumping fees of over $59,000.00 were saved, and 49,661 trees were kept from the paper mill.

Last month's drive saw 63.09 tons of paper collected, which sold for $887.84. Because this paper was taken from the waste stream, $1,317.99 in dumping fees was saved, and another 1,073 trees were kept from the pulp mill.

The WRC welcomes paper from everyone, no matter where they live. For further information, call Kristen Henshaw, 15 Pierce Avenue, Wakefield, phone 246-2387.

ROVING

counted on: a less-than-friendly visitor from the night. Just when I thought it was safe to fall asleep, just when I thought I had the muggy air beat, he returned. He was more determined this time, determined to stick around till he got what he came for. A big gulp of my rich, red blood.

This time, a wave of the hand failed to ward him off. He continued to make dive bomber approaches until he finally dug his microscopic needle into my neck. I felt it happening, but could do nothing to prevent it. In frustration, I slammed my open palm against my neck. It was too late. The sucker was gone, flying off to some other location in my darkened bedroom to rest and savor the feast he so diligently worked for.

I decided it wasn't worth getting upset over. I'd live without the blood and I wasn't about to lose any more sleep over it. Maybe the sucker choked on it. I'd had a few beers while watching the Red Sox game earlier; maybe he was drunk as a stinker right now and throwing up all over my wall. He deserved it. Meanwhile, I had to try to not think about scratching that huge welt that was growing on the side of my neck. Oh, how it was beginning to itch! All I could do was think about how glorious it would feel to dig my nails into that thing, dig them in so deep that that bite wouldn't have a chance to survive.

I gave in; I simply couldn't take it anymore. I went to town on it with my nails, thinking what a wimp I am. Couldn't even take a little mosquito bite without having to scratch it. You know the darn thing will go down faster if you leave it be, I told myself. Just as the message arrived at the part of the brain where the powers of reason live, I dug in for a second time. Now the welt felt like a giant lump. You knew better, I thought. You knew better. Now you're going to have to live with it.

I watched the red numerals on my digital alarm clock flash by. With each minute that passed I grew more aggravated. I simply couldn't fall asleep. I got out of bed and strolled into the bathroom. Even when I don't have to go, I walk into the bathroom sometimes because it helps me to rekindle that tired feeling. I flipped on the light switch. As I stood over the toilet, I noticed several more mosquitoes buzzing around the window screen. The fluorescent light seemed to attract their attention, stirring them up into a frenzy. I sighed, realizing there was nothing I could do about them while the roof was off. I was suddenly struck with the fear that one of them might get me in a most embarrassing spot, and decided it was time to hightail it back to bed.

I turned off the light and returned to the bedroom. Before climbing in bed, I contemplated turning on the bedroom light and searching for any creatures that might already be in the room. I said, no, and then opted instead to close the bedroom door. At least I could keep any more from getting into the bedroom, and as for those that were already present, well, it would be all out war between them and me. If it had to come down to that, which I hoped it wouldn't.

As I tried once again to find my way to blissville, my mind tossed around stories I'd hear about the behavior of mosquitoes. I'd heard they prefer men over women, that they love guys who sweat, and they are crazy about the color blue. And I think they go for guys who've been drinking alcohol. I wasn't sure if any of these stories were true — there was no way for me to separate fact from fancy, but one thing was certain: if they were true, I was in deep manure. I was a guy who'd had a few beers, was sweating like an overworked mule from the heat and humidity, and my bedspread was the loveliest color blue you could ever imagine. I suddenly felt ill-at-ease. If those guys buzzing around out there had any senses in the dark, I was about to become a gourmet meal.

I wasn't being bothered, and I began to wonder if perhaps I'd lucked out by shutting the door in time. I imagined a squadron of them just hovering outside my bedroom door. I felt comfortable now, and began to drift off. Hopefully not with a false sense of security.

Then suddenly they were upon me. In the dark I couldn't tell how many there were, but one thing was certain: those rumors I'd heard about mosquitoes must have been true. They were all over me. I pulled the sheet up to my neck, hoping that would discourage them. It didn't; they simply sought out whatever skin they could locate, and it all happened to be around my face.

With each passing attack, I flailed my open palms at them. At one point, I found myself clapping my palms together, hoping to squash one or two of them. I wished I'd been born with whale flukes, because they were the only weapons that would have been able to stop them.

Were they actually capable of planning such an attack? Or was it all instinct? I wondered if they sat around on tree branches earlier in the day, saying to themselves, "Boy, I can't wait until it gets dark so I can go eat Danny Ferullo!"

With the passing of yet another attack, I hopped out of bed and dove for the light switch.

The room exploded with bright light as my eyes darted about the room, just hoping to target one of those monsters. Moriarity and me, and one of us was going to die, and it wasn't going to be me. I spotted one of them resting on the ceiling. I stood on the edge of my bed, and with cool, calculated precision, my hand crept towards the creature until the back of it was just inches away from him. Go ahead, I whispered. Go ahead and try to escape.

I slapped the creature with all the vengeance I could muster, then pulled my hand away quickly. I wanted to wallow in my murderous act. A tiny splotch of red dotted my ceiling. Well, I thought, this guy was one of the ones who took a chunk out of me, all right. But he never got to enjoy it, that's for sure.

I went to the bathroom to get some tissue to wipe up the blood, making sure that I closed the door to the bedroom behind me. I noticed in the bathroom mirror that several large welts were already forming on my face and neck. Goodness, the enemy was having a field day with me!

I returned, closed the door behind me and then cleaned up the first casualty. I glimpsed the room for more creatures. I spotted another over by the lamp. No, there were two. Undaunted, they flashed about with seemingly no concern for my presence. Even after I managed to squash another one of them against the bedroom mirror, the survivor still went about his business as if nothing were wrong. I managed to kill another, and no sooner was he dead when at least two more appeared. This time buzzing about my head.

There was no way they were going to add to the Elephant Man look which I'd inherited from their cohorts earlier. I attacked them with ferocious hatred, until every one was dead. When I thought it was safe to let my guard down, I went about the business of cleaning up the messy remains of my Moriarity. My very real Moriarity.

I set the mosquito-stained tissue on the night stand next to my bed, turned off the light and returned to bed. I pulled the sheet up to my neck, very nearly covering my face, in fact, and wondered if I'd gotten them all. My body tingled with imaginary sensations. Or was Moriarity under the sheet, slowly inserting their needles into my skin? I convinced myself that it was my mind playing tricks on me, that I was still pumped up from the battle. The battle I'd won. At least for tonight. I dozed off much later, still thinking I heard one of them slowly circling my head.

The next morning I awoke to find at least ten huge welts still remaining on my face, neck and trunk. My arms and legs had somehow managed to escape bites. As I dabbed a rubbing alcohol-soaked cottonball on my wounds, a friend walked into my kitchen. He took one look at me, and regarded me with utmost curiosity.

"What the heck happened to you?" he asked.

"Don't ask," I said. "Don't ask."

Just then I spotted a mosquito attempting to get through the screen to the kitchen window. He kept banging his head unsuccessfully, finally coming to rest on the fine mesh screening. I could almost hear him saying, "I can't wait till it gets dark...."

Jim Campbell has quite a career

slide my pants over my feet. It's like threading a needle when the thread doesn't want to go in the right direction."

"What do you do for a job? "

"For most of the last 20 years, I've been working in the computer field. In 1981, I decided to go to college and I have a degree in journalism from Boston University," he tells them. "I graduated from B.U. 20 years after I graduated from high school." And he tells them also about all the cameras and buttons that control the doors at the jail where he works.

Arms wave in the air. There is no shortage of questions, no awkwardness at all. "What is your favorite sport? "

"I play basketball all the time," he says. "The basket is the same height as the Celtics'. I can dribble and push the chair. My arms are used to the higher basket. It's just like I played when I was standing up - I can still hit the basket, and I can still miss."

Campbell rides specially trained horses in Boxford. "My favorite sports are swimming which I've been doing forever and horseback riding which I started a few years ago. I never knew before that I could do that," he says. "Can anyone guess why swimming and riding are so important to me?

"Well, I live three miles from the ocean and I have 15 acres for horses right in my back yard," he begins. "But I swim like a fish and the main thing is, if there are four people swimming in a pool and my wheelchair is in a corner, no one knows whose wheelchair it is.

"It's the same with riders in the woods," he continues. "I like riding because I leave the wheelchair behind. Strangers can meet ME first - they don't have to deal with the wheelchair before they deal with me."

"How do you get to the second floor? " asks one child.

"I have been up on the second floor," says Campbell. "If it's important like someone's wedding, I'll ask someone to help me with the chair. Have you ever seen men bring a refrigerator upstairs? That's me - but I help them keep it tilted and we go one step at a time, or what would happen? "

And he tells them about wheelchair weights, rubber tires, flat tires, spare chairs; and about life in a wheel chair, giving them much more than the facts. "In 1967 when I was first hurt," he says, "there were very few ramps and curves and cuts in the sidewalks. We didn't have all these government standards. A long time ago, I had to learn how to use these chairs in a different way.

"To cross the street by myself, I couldn't go straight forward or backward. I had to learn a neat little trick but I had to learn it for a reason," he says, balancing his chair on its back wheels for all to see.

"It can be really dangerous outside - I have to pop a wheelie to roll across the grass. Most of the time I don't have someone push the chair because if there's a dip in the grass and the chair stops short, there I go on my nose," he says. "If they insist on being helpful and pushing me, I have to push like crazy just to stay ahead."

"What happens if you lose your balance when you pop a wheelie? "

"I flip over, and don't think that doesn't happen," he says. "That's part of rehabilitation in the hospital."

"Is it scary going up and down hills? " they ask.

"Yes," he says. "What are my brakes on this chair? My hands can lock the tires. If it's real steep, I can end up going down hill when I don't want to. Once when I went fishing, I cast my line, shifted my weight and ended up in four inches of water.

"I didn't get hurt but all the other guys with their $200 rods came running over. They were upset because I was laughing so hard," he says. "I've been to Niagara Falls and I can go all around on the walkways but they're very uneven so I stay away from them."

"How do you get on a horse? How do you get on an airplane? " they ask. "What if you have to go to the bathroom on an airplane?

"You know what's funny? For the first 17 years, I never went near an airplane because I thought it would be a big hassle," he says, taking the questions one at a time. "Then I became a member of the National Handicapped Horseback Riders Association and I wanted to travel. There's no problem getting on the plane. The main problem is the width of the aisle."

"What if you're in a different country and you don't know the language and there's no one to help you? " And Campbell answers in terms of finding restrooms, ramps, restaurants, and hotels.

"I would need to get all my information ahead of time," he says. "I would need someone to meet me - not to help me push the chair but to help me speak the language."

"How did you get married in a wheel chair? Does your wife help you with your chair? Does your wife have a disability? " they inquire.

"Everyone pictures the bride and groom walking down the aisle," he says. "We had to search for a church without stairs and we found one in Haverhill - but I had to be real careful with that fancy wedding dress because of my wheels. I had to keep pushing the dress out of the way with my elbow."

As for his wife helping him with his chair, he's "kind of funny about that." "We met 15 years ago when we worked for the Internal Revenue Service. I was living alone, driving a car, taking care of myself," he says. "It was obvious to her that I didn't need any help - but if she'd known me before, she might have tried to help."

And as for whether his wife Leslie has a disability, he pauses for much too long, considers, responds: "No, not really. Her only disability is her patience with me.

"My wife accepted me for me," he says, bringing home once again the message of Understanding Handicaps to yet another group of youngsters and all the adults lucky enough to be present. "I'm healthy - the only problem is my back doesn't work.

"I'm the same as you," he continues, "but I roll around instead of walk around. I still hate to shovel snow and mow the lawn and rake the walkway - but I still do it. I jump on a tractor mower or I put on my snowmobile suit. It may take a little longer but I still do it.

"The key is, for me, there's no such thing as 'handicapped.' It's a word - usually a word other people direct at me.

"I can still do whatever I want if I set out to do it."

Elders in new type of living arrangement

Local families will join with area professionals later this year to provide new homes for older residents of the community.

Under a program now being introduced by Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services, families will take in area elders who might otherwise have to live in nursing homes or other institutions.

The new program, Adult Family Care, is expected to be fully under way by the fall. It will bring local families together with older men and women in a special arrangement that allows the elders to stay in a home setting for as long as possible.

National studies have shown that elders prefer - by margins as high as four-to-one - to be cared for in homes rather than in nursing homes.

Host families in the new program will receive approximately $525 per month to provide living arrangements and help with meals, transportation, health related activities, daily living and other needs.

SCES will arrange for all the necessary nursing and social service support to help families in supervising and caring for the elders in their homes.

The agency will carefully match families and elders according to their individual needs and capabilities. The program will include long-term permanent arrangements, providing new homes for elders who may be living alone or in nursing homes, hospitals or other institutional settings, as well as short-term and emergency arrangements.

Program coordinator Barbara Nowack is currently introducing the program and is actively looking for families to participate. Individuals and families interested in taking part or just learning more should call her at Somerville-Cambridge Elder Services, 628-2601.

Audubon Society swamped with bird responses

Ornithologists at the Massachusetts Audubon Society were swamped with more than 8,500 responses to the 1988 Bird Feeder Survey, and according to the survey results, your feeders were swamped with chickadees.

The state bird of Massachusetts, the black-capped chickadee, was the most common native New England bird to forage for sunflower seeds at backyard feeders.

Although the most interesting findings from the survey will come with increased participation and comparisons from one year to another, this first-ever Massachusetts Audubon survey of bird feeders provided some good insights into winter bird population.

"The survey will help identify trends in wintering bird species," said Chris Leahy, Director of Conservation at the Massachusetts Audubon Society. "People who feed birds are a valuable source of information and are also a motivated force behind their protection."

The top ten species that visited backyard feeders were (in order of abundance) house sparrow, black-capped chickadee, European starling, mourning dove, dark-eyed junco, house finch, blue jay, tufted titmouse, American goldfinch, and northern cardinal. House sparrows, starlings, and house finches are not native to Massachusetts. The tufted titmouse and the cardinal are "southern" birds that have only in the last 30 years been conspicuous additions to the bird population in New England.

A staggering 500 tons of seed are used each year (mostly November through March), just by the 8,500 households that responded to the survey. "The actual number of tons statewide could easily be 50 to 100 times that amount according to previous estimates of the numbers of people who feed birds in the state," said Leahy.

Nearly half of those who responded felt that the number of birds in their neighborhood were declining. Most people attributed the decline to habitat loss and development, as well as to pesticides and pollution. "While these comments are purely anecdotal, they show that it is not just ornithologists who are watchdogging bird populations. Novice bird-watchers are noticing a trend — and they care," said Leahy.

Those who enjoyed watching birds this winter will be treated to many new varieties of birds at the peak of the spring bird migration. For more information on May Bird Walks call Massachusetts Audubon's Environmental Helpline at 1-800-541-3443.

DISPLACED HOMEMAKERS

Middlesex Community College will offer a free 34-week Secretarial Certificate Program with Medical or Legal options that will be available to displaced homemakers during the 1988-89 school year (pending approval by the Massachusetts Department of Education). This program is designed to provide displaced homemakers with the job skills necessary to qualify for employment as a Medical or Legal Secretary. A displaced homemaker is a separated, divorced or widowed woman, a single parent or a woman with a disabled spouse.

Each student will receive classroom training, counseling in job seeking skills and placement assistance.

To apply, students must attend an informational meeting and have a personal interview. The first informational meeting for the 1988-89 class will be held at the Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall Avenue on Tuesday, August 2 at 10 a.m. in Room 117. Please call Barbara Rubin at 275-8910, ext. 298 or 291 or 937-5454 from Lowell to schedule an appointment. Additional informational meetings have been scheduled at 10 a.m. for Thursday, August 18 and Wednesday, August 31.

SENIOR NEWS

On the evening of June 7th, the clients at the Green Street Geriatric Center attended the L.I.F.E. (Living is for Elderly) Senior Ball at the Irish-American Club in Malden. The Senior Ball is an annual event that provides a night of dining and dancing for our senior citizens.

Later in the month the Green Street Center was pleased to have the Rev. Larry Starr of the Green Street Baptist Church present his slide show on Africa.

The Green Street Center serves the towns of Malden, Medford, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham and Wakefield. For information and referral contact Nina Takayama, R.N. at 665-9154.

SUMMER FITNESS

Group exercise programs and organized recreational sports can be enjoyed this summer at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH), in Stoneham. The goal of the fitness classes is to have fun while staying in shape.

The July and August programs include: Aerobics, a co-educational class that combines low- and high-impact aerobics to music; Exercise for Health, a co-educational exercise class to help participants lose weight or become fit; Women's Fitness, a strenuous workout program for women only; Karate, for children and adults; and a co-educational Basketball program.

For more information, or to register for the programs, please call the NEMH Center for Health Promotion at 979-7057.

SAMURAI TRILOGY

One of the best known films of Director Hiroshi Inagaki, Miyamoto Musashi, "The Samurai Trilogy," will be screened in full at the Peabody Museum of Salem on Thursday evenings, August 4, 11 and 18. Each part begins at 7 p.m. and there is a $1 charge above Museum admission.

On Wednesday afternoons, August 3 — August 31, the Museum will also present five documentaries from Japan: "Understanding the Japanese" (August 3), "Gardens of Japan" (August 10), "The Living Arts of Japan" (August 17), "Kabuki — The Classic Theater" (August 24) and "Bunraku-Puppet Theater" (August 31). The afternoon films begin at 3:15 p.m. and are open at no charge above Museum admission of $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and students with ID, and $1.50 for children 6 to 16.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT DEGREE

If you want to succeed in your own business or advance within your company, then a degree in Business Management is the logical step. Newbury College offers an Associate Degree program in Business Management which emphasizes corporate structure, business functions, management responsibilities and business ethics.

Students wishing to register for classes beginning September 21, may do so by calling the Admissions Office at 245-8297.

Newbury College offers adult students the opportunity to earn an Associate Degree in two years by attending classes on Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Wakefield Junior High School, 525 Main Street. A tuition plan is available for students eligible for company reimbursement and the program is approved by the Veteran's Administration. The College offers assistance with Financial Aid, and the Career Planning and Placement Office is available to students and alumni.

VOLUNTEER PARTNERS

4-H is seeking volunteer partners to design new ways to deliver programs to youth in areas of diet, nutrition, and health.

These volunteers will not necessarily have expertise in the diet health area, but should enjoy providing leadership to adults, have a community service orientation, and have a genuine concern for enabling youth to be educated about healthy life styles. A time commitment of 25 hours per month, during the school year, would be required.

For more information call Donna Beusch in Concord at 369-4845 or 862-2380.

KING'S GRANT INN PRESENTS STARLIGHT DANCING 1988

Over the years we have presented some wonderful evenings of entertainment at the King's Grant Inn. The time seems right again to do something that we have not done in a long time ... present live, big bands, with dancing under the stars, under the tent.

The July and August series of four evenings will get off to a wonderful start with the well-known Glenn Miller Orchestra, under the direction of Dick Gerhart. Performing with the orchestra will be the Moonlight Serenaders. The remaining line-up includes: Wednesday, July 20: The Dick Donovan Orchestra and Sophia; Thursday, August 11: The Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra, Lee Castle conducting; Thursday, August 25: The Gene Krupa Orchestra, Chris Powers conducting.

You do not have to be too old to remember the romantic feeling of the Old Totem Pole and Starlight Ballroom. This is the feeling we want to bring back with "Starlight Dancing 1988."

There will be huge, colorful tents overhead, so all shows are rain or shine. Doors open, for all shows, at 6:30 p.m. Showtime, for all shows, at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $12.50 in advance and $15 the day of the show. Tickets are on sale now and are available at: King's Grant Inn (Danvers), Ted Cole's Music Shop (Salem), Gloucester Music (Gloucester), all Strawberries Record and Tape Stores, all Ticketron locations. For information, call 774-6800.

LEGENDS IN CONCERT

The Las Vegas extravaganza Legends in Concert will be at the Cape Cod Melody Tent on Tuesday, July 26 at 8:30 p.m.

It is a wrinkle in time! It is a special effects extravaganza! It is an entertaining evening filled with humor, music and dance! It is the Las Vegas show stopper Legends in Concert.

Legends in Concert features 13 impersonators of entertainment's greatest stars like Elvis, Marilyn Monroe, Buddy Holly, Nat King Cole, Hank Williams, Jack Benny and The Beatles. Producer/creator John Stuart achieved success after a long diligent search for performers that looked like the stars as well as possessed some of their talent. The search, in combination with the laser and light show, produced the desired effects allowing the audience to travel back to the times of the performers earning the production the 1985 Show of the Year Award in Las Vegas.

Tickets for Legends in Concert may be purchased for $24 and $18 at the Melody Tent Box Office open daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. or by calling 617-775-9100. Tickets may be purchased nationwide through Teletron 1-800-382-8080.

SELECT SOCIETY SEEKING MEMBERS

The Select Society of the Merrimack Valley invite area senior citizens and their friends to join them on the following trips.

September 6-8 in Atlantic City for Miss America Pageant Week. This three -day trip will enable those who wish to see the pageant first hand to do so and those who wish to spend their time in the Casinos can also do so — a little of both if so desired. Only $179.

On October 3-7, it's off to Las Vegas for only $399 per person — double occupancy! This is a specially arranged trip for senior citizens and their friends. Hotel accommodations and air fares are included as well as many other "goodies."

November 3, a trip to Aruba is being planned for an eight-day stay in the balmy breezes of warm and delightful Caribbean shores at a first class hotel.

Plans are also in the offing for a trip to the Holy Land and also to Ireland and England. If anyone is interested in receiving more information on any or all of these trips, it is recommended that you send a stamped, self- addressed envelope to: Select Society Coordinator, P.O. Box 022, Lawrence, Mass. 01842. Since seating is limited, write soon.

FALL-WINTER ELDERHOSTEL

"Elderhostel is a wonderful new world! Nowhere else could I be exposed to so many positive people with so many varied life experiences." This hosteler's experience will be repeated by thousands of positive people throughout New England this fall and early winter as more than 130 programs are available in the region.

Elderhostel is an international network of short-term, low-cost, residential academic programs. All people age 60 and older are eligible. There are no tests, graders or homework in Elderhostel programs.

Hostelers' accommodations are campus residence halls. Meals are taken in the dining room. A full complement of extra-curricular and social activities is included each week. And the joy of making new friends from around the country makes for a rich, rewarding time.

The 1988 fall/winter programs in New England range from cross country skiing in northern Vermont to marine science on Cape Cod. To receive the full catalogue of Elderhostel programs nationwide, write Elderhostel, 80 Boylston Street, Suite 400, Boston, Mass. 02116. Catalogues are immediately available at all public libraries.

HERBS FOR USE AND DELIGHT

A workshop on August 5 and 6 will be presented at the Rockport Lodge by Mary Milligan and Patricia Zaido, herb gardeners, teachers and members of the New England Unit of the Herb Society of America.

The program will include the following: Identification and discussion of the herbs in the Rockport Lodge herb garden; discussion of planning, planting, growing, and harvesting an herb garden; culinary use of both fresh and dried herbs; decorative uses of herbs; how to make pot pourri and use herbs for fragrance and aroma.

This weekend workshop has grown in popularity each year. The workshop leaders limit the number of participants in order to insure individual attention to each one's personal herb questions, problems and areas of interest. So please register early so you will not be disappointed.

The Rockport Lodge is located in an ideal setting. A 15-minute walk will take you to quaint shops in the town's center, or to relatively secluded North Shore conservation areas and beaches. Nearby paths provide the luxury of quiet walks. The ocean air is absolutely refreshing. It is a cozy, casual, welcoming place.

Established in 1906 as a summer lodge where low and moderate income women could enjoy themselves, The Rockport Lodge is one of few non-profit organizations of its kind still in existence today.

This special weekend is open to the public. If you plan to take the workshops only, the fee is $30. If you plan to stay at The Rockport Lodge, the fee is $15 for participation in the workshops in addition to your lodging fee. Daily rates for accommodations range from a moderate $38 — $45 per nite. Three healthy, delicious meals are included.

For more information contact The Rockport Lodge at 61 South Street, Rockport, Ma. 01966, phone (617) 546-2090.

LAWN EVENTS AT MUSEUM OF TRANSPORTATION

The Museum of Transportation at Larz Anderson Park, 15 Newton Street in Brookline hosts the Porsche Club on the museum grounds Saturday, July 16th, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Sponsored by the Northeast Region of the Porsche Club of America, Clair International Motor Cars and Tweeter, Etc. all Porsche models are invited to participate.

Pre-registration continues through July 9th. Pre-registration fee, $10. Anyone wishing to pre-register their Porsche is asked to telephone Steve Ross at 655-4249. MONEY FOR HOME REPAIRS

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income there are federal, state and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group, has just published its 1988 update of "Consumers Guide to Home Repair Grants and Subsidized Loans" a 240-page book which lists over 7,000 sources of loan and grant sources, as well as detailed instructions on determining your debt-to-income ratio for eligibility. The book can be obtained for $10 plus $2 shipping and handling from CERC GRANTS, 134 Evergreen Place, East Orange, N.J. 07018 or by calling 1-800-USA-0121 for credit card orders outside New Jersey.

Robert L. Berko of CERC, tells us, "Some of these programs have no income ceiling and others allow income of as much as $100,000 per year. There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans or give grants to poor credit risks. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways." Since it is important the the work be done properly, the book includes a section showing how to pick a reputable contractor, negotiate a contract and insure that the work is done properly and for a fair price.

Trivia

LILY PAD SERENADE — Puerto Rico's coqui frog is less than two inches long but has a call that can reach 108 decibles. That's louder than a low-flying jet or subway train. According to National Wildlife magazine, the small brown frog is the most abundant native vertebrate in Puerto Rico — not to mention the loudest. Its song is the island's unofficial national anthem. The frog's likeness beams from countless billboards, posters and T-shirts. Tourists can even take home recordings of the coqui's call.

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—The North Reading School Committee has officially adopted a policy raising the age for kindergarten eligibility to five by the start of school.

The new policy will be phased in, taking full effect in the 1990-91 school year when students will be required to be five years old by August 31st for kindergarten and six for first grade - unless they entered the year before under a different kindergarten requirement.

In conjunction with the above change, the committee is considering a policy which would provide for early admissions to kindergarten for children who are four years, eight months by August 31st.

Parents of children who "show sufficient advancement" to justify such admission may appeal for permission to enroll their children in kindergarten. A similar policy would go into effect for first graders but early admissions will only be considered if classroom space is available. According to the North Reading Transcript, advancement under the proposed policy will be determined "on the basis of suitable tests of academic potential and social-economic development." Social-economic development? —Students in Mrs. Corson's first grade at Stoneham's North School were invited to read their individual books on the solar system to students in Stoneham High's astronomy class. Corson reports that after their initial fears about walking into the classroom were overcome, they very eagerly shared their many weeks of research with the seniors and were very warmly received.

—At a recent awards banquet of the Collaborative Project in Math and Science Education, Reading's Coolidge Middle School science teacher Jack Fasciano and Parker Middle School math teacher Mary Abegg were named Outstanding Middle School Math and Science Teachers of the North Shore.

—Tewksbury students are the winners in a joint venture between the Tewksbury High Parents' Advisory Council and Tewksbury Rotary. The "Hats Off" award is presented to two students each month.

—A move is afoot by the Wilmington Home and School Association to change the Wilmington Town Charter in order to create a seven-member school committee. Although the committee has consisted of six elected members since 1922, problems arose this year because of a series of three-to-three splits in the election of a new chairperson.

In researching the issue, the association discovered that many other towns have odd school boards. Oops! That's "odd numbered" school boards.

—Only in America? Lynnfield officers of the Class of 1989 proposed that members of their class head next February for the Talanquer Hotel, Beach and Country Club, 30 miles east of Santo Domingo, West Indies.

School Committee members felt the $849 price tag was a bit too high and would preclude a majority of class members from participating.

"I don't think the question of affordability came up with the senior class," says Class of '89 President Jeff Green.

Coming to America Short Takes

Coming to America Starring Eddie Murphy, Arsenio Hall, Shari Headley, James Earl Jones, John Amos. Directed by John Landis. Produced by Robert D. Wachs, George Folsey, Jr. Screenplay by David Sheffield, Barry W. Blaustein. Rated R (profanity).

Mea culpa. I admit it, I expected Coming to America to be lousy. Really lousy. Eddie Murphy is a man well-known for his homophobic, sexist jokes and violent, macho movies. There was no indication, even from the trailers and the ads, that this movie was anything but a sophomoric attempt to find the perfect woman.

I was wrong.

Not that Coming to America could ever be considered art, but it is a pleasant, surprisingly gentle comedy that is going to do wonders for Murphy's bad boy image. He has finally channeled his energy into constructively using his enormous talent. While the vehicle has its flaws, Murphy's performance(s) in it are delightful.

Cast as Akeem, Murphy plays the crown prince of the mythical African kingdom of Zamunda, a small country ruled by the very imposing James Earl Jones. Pampered and coddled, Akeem has grown up in a sheltered environment untouched by the realities of day-to-day existence. On his 21st birthday, the prince is presented with a new bride, a woman trained since birth to obey her lord and master. She's beautiful, but mindless. What Akeem wants is a woman whose intellect will match his own. Hence the journey to Queens, where he and his servant, played by Arsenio Hall, disguise themselves as students, go to work in a fast-food restaurant and seek out suitable women.

It's a ploy that's been used many times before in films, so it's not the plot that's particularly attractive. But Murphy is. He exudes a charming naivete we have never seen before. His usual cockiness seems to have been banished from the set. Murphy is really acting here, not just extending his stand-up routine, and he is amazingly good at it. He never breaks the soft African accent and injects a tongue-in-cheek sensibility into his sweet prince that keeps him from coming across as too good to be true.

Murphy also appears a: several characters throughou: the film, the most interesting of which is a Jewish curmudgeon in a barber shop, although he also appears as a barber and a pot-bellied lounge lizard called Randy Watson. Hall also takes on several roles, including a fiery preacher and a barber. Adding to this fun outside of the main plot are cameos by Ralph Bellamy and Don Ameche that refer back to their roles in Trading Places, one of Murphy's earlier hits.

Unfortunately, cameos and dual roles do not add up to a complete film. Coming to America shows a lot of promise, but it doesn't deliver a strong enough plot line to make it a real blockbuster. There are also some serious pacing problems, such as the first half hour, most of which is set in the African kingdom. Director John Landis should have cut this scene in half. The tacked-on finale suffers from the same overblown glitz that bogs down the prologue, although it is much shorter. It's as if these sequences belonged to another film and are much too self-indulgent to make the jokes work. But the middle of the film gels into a light, upbeat romance whose roots are firmly planted in films of yore. As the boy tries to get the girl, sex and vulgarity have been supplanted by that old-fashioned device known as a kiss. And you know what? It's kinda nice.

Short Takes

Stars and Bars is an odd look at America through the eyes of a staid British art dealer who can't seem to adjust himself to life in the States. But when Daniel Day Lewis visits a decrepit Southern family, headed by Harry Dean Stanton, he gets a dose of Americana that knocks him for a loop. That's because it's Americana as seen through the bottom of a musty beer bottle. Quirky, but fun, and funny. Rated R. * * *

Wings of Desire is an interesting film about angels in Berlin. Sort of. Shot in black and white, it's a very artsy movie that doesn't pay off for 90 minutes, and while that pay-off is intriguing, almost brilliant, no movie should leave you in the dark for that long. Heck, it takes you almost an hour to realize that when the film lapses from black and white to color, it's because angels only see in black and white, but people can see a broader spectrum. A little explanation from director Wim Wenders would have gone a long way. Rated PG-13. * *

Bull Durham is about baseball and romance and sex and talent and poetry and metaphysics, but not necessarily in that order. Susan Sarandon plays a wonderfully eccentric lady who may look as if she's out in left field someplace, but knows exactly what she's doing. Each year she chooses a rookie from the local, minor league Durham Bulls and "helps" him through the season. Only when she chooses Timothy Robbins, her signals get crossed with veteran Kevin Costner, every bit a match for her intellect and libido. This three-way split is one of the best adult comedies ever made. Rated R. * * * *

Poltergeist III is a mere shadow of the first chiller in this trilogy and doesn't even rate the price of admission. With all the special effects zapped through a haunted Chicago highrise, you'd think the filmmakers could do more than raise one or two paltry scares. But this thing is so bogged down by its own technology and poorly shaped characters that the ghost story is almost lost in the fuss. Forget this one, as horror flicks are supposed to give us nightmares, not put us to sleep. Rated PG-13. *

The Presidio combines sex and scandal at a military compound, but the plot is so thin it makes last season's lame "No Way Out," a similar type of thriller, look like a Hitchcockian classic. Mark Harmon and Meg Ryan steam up the set, but the flick vacillates between a psychological drama involving her father, played by Sean Connery, and a murder mystery that appears to have been added as an afterthought. Because there is no clear-cut statement as to what this movie wants to be, it just kind of lies there. Rated R. * *

Funny Farm is a warm, delightful comedy about a couple who try to escape the coldness of the big city for the charm and warmth of the country, only to find people can be nasty everywhere. Chevy Chase has never been better as an aspiring, but talentless novelist who can't quite adapt to his Rockwellian hell. Rated PG. * * *

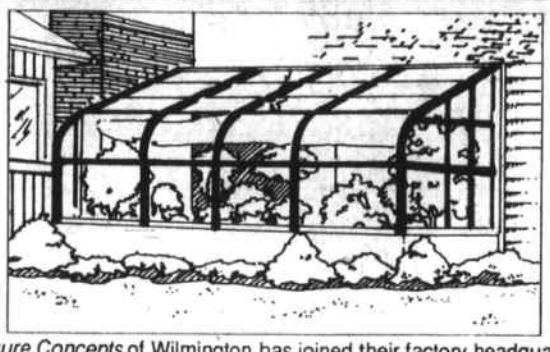

Big Business may suffer from a lack of depth, as the plot to this comedy is sketchy at best, but it still has plenty of big laughs. Bette Midler and Lily Tomlin have dual roles as twins switched at birth who find each other years later when the hayseed sisters go to the Big Apple to haggle over the sale of a local factory, owned, of course, by the corporate twins. While a little overblown, Midler is still hysterical as the hard-as-nails corporate leader and Tomlin has never given a richer performance than as the city gal longing for greener pastures. Rated PG. * * *

EDDIE MURPHY plays Prince Akeem, who travels from the mythical kingdom of Zamunda to New York in search of a bride; and Arsenio Hall (right) portrays his loyal, royal companion Semmi, in Paramount Pictures' contemporary romantic comedy "Coming To America."

Does your Pool look like a pond?

If your pool is murky green or has black or yellow spots, you probably have an algae problem. And algae is not only ugly, it's not good for you or your pool. It clogs your filter and makes a hearty meal for all kinds of bacteria.

BioGuard has a cure. Because we're algae experts. No matter what type algae you have, we have the solution.

So don't swim in a pond-bring your pool to BioGuard. We make swimming a heavenly experience.

Bring your pool to BioGuard.

AN EDUCATION FOR ALL

Students from Woburn's Hurld Elementary School's sixth grade on a tour of Woburn Five's main office.

Vernon W. Parkhurst
Chairman/CEO
Woburn Five Cents Savings Bank

"Some of the most rewarding exchanges I've had during my 20 years at the bank have been with the children of Woburn and its neighboring towns. I've enjoyed the time I have taken to give tours and speak with more than 3,600 students from our local schools. Honestly, I don't know how much they've learned from me, but I certainly have learned a great deal from them. They really keep me on my toes."

"Most of them are just at the age when money is becoming important to them. They're just beginning to realize that adults don't have an endless supply of ready cash. They're also beginning to understand that, if they want a new bike or a new radio, they have to work (even if it's just household chores) and save their money.

"I think the real understanding of the value of money comes when the kids find out what grownups have to do to achieve their financial goals. They meet some of our loan officers and investment managers and find out exactly how people like their parents pay for cars and houses and college. Every once in a while, you see one or two students whose eyes light up with a new appreciation of what Mom and Dad are doing for them. It's a great education for all of us."

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Perle Mesta said that the secret of her success in getting so many rich and famous people to attend her parties was in the greetings and good-byes. As each guest arrived, she greeted him or her with, "I'm so glad to see you." When they left, "I'm sorry you have to leave so soon." When Kathy and I go to a party, we are usually greated with, "Oh, it's you again!" When we leave, it's "So long," to Kathy and, "Buzz off, buzzard" to me.

The fellow who can smile when things go wrong and are all fouled up is probably going off his work shift. George Guyette said to me, "My virtues I learned at my mother's knee. My vices I learned at other "joints."

Loneliness is a terribly painful condition. A husband and wife touring through the back hills of West Virginia saw a sign, "Antiques." They stopped, knocked at the door, and were welcomed warmly by two old ladies. When the visitors asked, "Where are the antiques?" one of the ladies answered sheepishly, "We are the antiques." Then over a cup of tea, they confessed that they were lonely, and had no nearby relatives and friends, and practically no visitors for days. They came up with an idea of putting up a sign, knowing that people who like antiques are usually nice people. "Notice," said one of the ladies, "that we don't say 'For Sale.' We are so lonely here that we feel God would not mind our little trick that helps us meet some very nice people.

There may be many people in the Middlesex East area who are lonely and consider themselves forgotten and "shunted" aside like a boxcar on a railroad siding. Well, let me know who you are, and I promise that you won't be forgotten in the Woodchips column.

Personality Winners: Ellen O'Brien, Tommy Flynn ... knock on wood, I'm glad I'm not superstitious. But did you know that many hotels don't have a 13th floor? They jump to the 14th from the 12th. Some supermarkets also omit the 13th checkout station. My Aunt Nora asked me, "Do you stir your coffee-with your left hand?" "No," I replied, "I usually use a spoon."

I asked Uncle John Shea why the first row in a burlesque show is usually occupied by bald-headed men. He smiled and said, "They buy their tickets from "scalpers!"

Two men were fishing, when the game warden came upon them and demanded to see their licenses. Mike Gaffney (one of the fishermen) took off with the game warden in pursuit. After 10 minutes and four miles of running, Mike stopped and produced a valid license. "Why in the heck did you let me chase you?" the game warden asked. "Richard Rebidue doesn't have a license."

My church choir went on a deep sea fishing trip last summer and when a storm came up, we nearly lost two sopranos on the "high C's."

My Aunt Nora took the train to Boston, when it stopped abruptly, jolting many passengers out of their seats. The conductor tried to calm everyone down saying that the train hit a cow. "Oh," my Aunt Nora exclaimed, "was the cow on the tracks?" "No," replied the conductor, "we had to chase it into a barn!"

When the train pulled into North Station, my Aunt asked, "Which end of the train do I get off?" "Either end," the conductor replied, "they both stop at the same time."

Folks, success is getting up one more time than you fall down. Education will never become as expensive as ignorance.

Johnny Avalone got on a bus in Woburn Square and sat down in the only seat available, next to a slim lady, pushing her against the side of the bus. She looked at Johnny and noting his size said, "They ought to charge by weight on these buses." "If they did," Johnny said, "it wouldn't be worth the bother to stop and pick up some people."

Bobby Burns met a well-dressed gentleman walking his dog. As the dog made one of his frequent stops, Bobby asked (in a friendly way), "What breed of dog is that, sir?" (It was an Irish terrier). To belittle Bobby, the dog owner wisecracked, "He's part Irish and part monkey." In a flash, Bobby Burns shot back with, "Think of that, sir, he's related to both of us!" Atta boy, Bobby.

An eager beaver stockbroker was on the phone trying to convince an elderly lady to put all her money in a new stock. "Ma'am," he said, "this stock will triple your investment in five years." "Sonny," she replied, "I'm 95 years old, and at my age I don't even buy green bananas.

They finally persuaded Rowan Fitzgerald to attend a lecture on nutrition. The speaker boasted natural foods and belittled what she called preservatives. When time came for the question and answer period, Rowan stood up, and in a crackling voice asserted, "You can talk all you want about natural foods. At my age,

World renowned doll artist to appear in Billerica

On Tuesday, July 19, between 3 and 6 p.m., world renowned doll artist, Robin Woods will be appearing at Baby me, located at 730 Boston Road in Billerica. During her first visit to the Billerica Area, Robin will be autographing some one of a kind dolls as well as any of her dolls bought that day. Baby Me will have a large selection of Robin's 1988 editions available as well as a few select pieces from her 1987 award-winning line.

Robin Woods, Inc., founded in 1983, manufactures the finest quality play doll. They proudly display the "Crafted with Pride in the USA" symbol. The many awards received by the company for the dolls attest to the excellence of design and the imaginative concepts they develop.

The major designer is Robin Woods, Ph.D., who also serves as the Chief Executive Officer and Board Chairperson. Dr. Woods holds degrees in English literature and a doctoral degree in child development. She is married and the mother of six children.

Robin Woods has been making dolls and doll clothes since she was a little girl. Growing up on the plains of west Texas, she spent many hours with her grandmother, a gifted storyteller. Through her, Robin began to develop the keen sense of history and literature so apparent in her work as a doll designer. In her personal appearances around the country, Dr. Woods enjoys sharing the love she feels for dolls as well as her special knowledge of the importance of dolls in the healthy development of children.

The collections each share a common theme, based on classic works of children's literature, famous poems, and illustrious individuals from the world of art or history. Still other designs come from Robin Woods' own vivid imagination. The Camelot Castle Collection, introduced in 1988, captures the expression of children caught up in the excitement of pretending to be the bold knights and beautiful princesses of the famous legends around King Arthur and the court as Camelot. The other collections, which are constantly being expanded, include: The Alcott Collection, bring to life the works of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" and "Rose in Bloom"; Spring Parade; the American Children's Collection; The Ballet Theater; This is My Country; Great Women of the Arts; and Childhood Classics.

Robin Woods, Inc., currently manufactures two types of dolls; an all-vinyl doll in four sizes, and a combination of soft cloth body with vinyl head and limbs in two sizes.

The cloth body, vinyl limb toddler doll has a unique body form. The arms and legs are jointed, and the doll is designed to sit unsupported on the edge of a chair. The flexible body design has tremendous play value: the doll can sit alone, sleep, be cuddled and carried along easily as a child's best friend and companion. The body concept was nominated by the International Doll Academy for the doll "concept of the year" award in 1987.

All are welcome to meet Robin Woods, Tuesday, July 19 at Baby Me!

Quail Run is for the Birds

Among your neighbors on these forty-seven acres of rolling woods and meadowlands, you'll find woodcock, grouse, pheasant, and, of course, quail. Along with a tennis court, swimming pool, and a picnic area.

Priced from the low $200's, these contemporary New England homes feature fireplaces, skylights, decks, and patios. They are also minutes from Route 128 and the Burlington Mall.

Take Route 128 to Exit 33A for two miles, then right on Russell Street, Quail Run is ¼ mile on the right in West Woburn on the Lexington line.

Our model is open daily; call us at 935-6868 for more information.

Developed, Designed & Marketed by UNIHAB

Quail Run

PLUMBERS

Mass. Loc. Only

I would like to personally welcome you to join New England's leading mechanical team. I'm looking for ambitious motivated individuals who are looking for a future and who will take great pride in their workmanship. We are offering over 16 fringe benefits that include a company truck for those who qualify, pension plan, medical, dental, life insurance, disability plan, very liberal truck pay reimbursement, cooperative tool replacement, holiday pay, vacations, uniforms, overtime and bonuses. We have our own warehousing that eliminates the frustration of chasing for materials.

It's important to have a comfortable, friendly working atmosphere. Our summer outing, deep-sea fishing trip, Christmas weekend and other events (paid by Denron) help us to know each other better. Denron can be a company you would be very proud to work for. I will do everything I can to make you feel that way. Please give Ed a call or talk to me if he's not in.

Beautiful Lawns Are As Easy As 1-2-3

What homeowner doesn't dream of having the best lawn on the block? Lush green grass adds value to your home and admiration for you among neighbors and friends.

A beautiful lawn doesn't just happen, of course. But it doesn't have to mean weekends of hard labor or hundreds of dollars spent on lawn care products and professional services either.

Here are easy steps you can take now to ensure a healthy lawn throughout the growing season:

- Clean up your act. Before seeding, feeding or mowing your lawn, rake and remove any trash, twigs, leaves or grass clippings that accumulated over winter. As you walk through your yard, note any bare sections or areas showing stress from disease or weed infestation. Spot treat small sections with a non-selective weed killer like ready-to-use ROUNDUP L&G Grass and Weed killer in its own trigger sprayer bottle. For larger damaged areas, use concentrated ROUNDUP L&G mixed with water to kill existing vegetation before reseeding or sodding. Follow label directions and apply the product only to the green parts of plants you want to kill. Biodegradable ROUNDUP L&G won't wash or leach into the soil, and you'll enjoy a healthy stand of grass by summer without the usual back-breaking labor associated with lawn renovation.
- Feed your lawn a balanced diet. Even if your lawn is in good shape to begin with, it needs the nutrients a good fertilizer can provide. A well-fed lawn is more resistant to stress, disease and insects all season. Adequate fertilizer this year will also reduce the likelihood of brown spots and the need to reseed or sod next spring. Most lawns respond best to four feedings a year, beginning with one in early spring. For best results, test the soil first to determine the most appropriate fertilizer for your lawn. Your local garden center or University Extension advisor can help you with soil test materials.
- Save yourself work while you decorate. Spring is an especially good time to add edging and mulching materials where appropriate. Besides making your lawn more attractive, they help to cut down on later hand weeding and make mowing easier. Prepare sites with an application of ROUNDUP L&G to kill existing growth roots and all before adding mulch or edging materials. Even if you're not adding mulch, spray apply ROUNDUP L&G around the base of trees, along your driveway, walkways, fences and curbs to prevent mower damage and eliminate string trimming or hand clipping all summer long. A single application is usually all that's needed to kill unwanted growth and keep it from coming back.

Lawn care doesn't have to be costly or complicated. By simply following these three easy steps now, you're well on your way to ensuring a healthy green lawn all season long without a major investment in time or money.

ADULT BIKE RIDES

The following are bicycle rides sponsored by the North Shore Cyclists — a non-profit bike club for adult recreational riders:

July 17 — The Olde Farm Ride. Meet at Topsfield Common at 9 a.m. for double ride of 22-miles or 37-miles through Middleton, Boxford, Georgetown, Rowley and Ipswich.

July 24 — Three loop picnic ride with Charles River Wheelmen. Meet at Bradley Palmer State Park in Topsfield at 10 a.m. for this 35-mile ride. A "light and leisurely" ride of 15-miles will start at 11 a.m. A $3 parking fee is required in the park. There will also be a 62-mile metric ride meet at 9 a.m. leaving from the parking lot of Hill's Department Store in Ipswich Center.

July 31 — Double-scoop ice cream ride. Meet at the Manchester, Mass. High School at 9 a.m. There will be a short 18-mile ride and longer one of 38-miles.

August 7 — Plum Island Ride. Meet at the Winthrop School on Rt. 1A in Ipswich at 9 a.m. Two ride loops, 26 and 42 miles will be offered.

There are also Saturday morning, Tuesday evening and Thursday evening rides offered, led by various members of the North Shore Cyclists.

For more information, call Bob Newhall, 927-3975.

BURLINGTON AUDITIONS

Clearly they're hopeless! The Burlington Players' May production of the musical comedy "Baby" was a major hit, setting new records for tickets sold and decibels recorded from applause, cheers and whistling at curtain call.

You'd expect they'd rest on their laurels or quit while they were ahead, or some other cliche, but nooooooo.....- auditions for "The Foreigner," the first show in the Burlington Players' 1988-1989 season, will be held Wednesday, July 13 and Thursday, July 14 at 7 p.m. at the Park Playhouse, off Winn Street in Burlington.

Call the Park Playhouse at 229-2649 to get more information on "The Foreigner" and the Burlington Players' 1988-89 season. You're gonna love it!

SEVEN SEAS WHALE WATCH

"On one trip we saw so many whales that their spouts looked like a picket fence." This extraordinary statement was made this past week by the captain of a Seven Seas Whale Watch out of Gloucester.

According to the captain and the owner of the Whale Watch, Michael Linquata, the whales have arrived in what some observers claim as the largest number in recent years.

Departing from the Gloucester House Restaurant, the Seven Seas Whale Watch fleet of the Privateer 1 and Privateer 2 have taken thousands of happy whale watchers on the excursion of a lifetime already this season. With a naturalist on board to offer a detailed description, the Seven Seas Whale Watch guarantees a sighting or a rain check is cheerfully given. Linquata, however, doesn't anticipate that happening this year. In fact, on only a few occasions have they had to extend a rain check.

For the thrill of a lifetime, plan now to see the whales in action off the Gloucester coast. The Seven Seas Whale Watch leaves Seven Seas Wharf in Gloucester three times daily at 8 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. For information and reservations contact the Seven Seas Whale Watch at 283-1776.

PRO-SOCCER ON TV

Residents in the greater Boston area can now tune in the Boston Bolts' professional soccer games, as WHRC-TV Channel 46 becomes the only commercial television station to air the local matches.

Two-to-three times a month on Wednesday evenings from 8 to 10 on Channel 46, challengers like the Tampa Bay Rowdies (July 27), Albany Capitals (August 3) and New Jersey Eagles (August 10) will attempt to crush the Bolts, who this year have entered their first outdoor soccer season.

FAIR TIME

The 1988 fair season has begun!

Throughout this season, which started the middle of May and continues until the first of December, home gardeners, as well as commercial growers, exhibit their produce, livestock, canned goods, baked goods, handcrafts and special hobbies for competition and profit at fairs across the state.

There are over 100 of these agricultural fairs including grange, 4-H and youth, livestock and flower shows. The majority of these take place from August to October.

For those interested in attending these fairs, or wishing to compete, the Middlesex Cooperative Extension Office is offering a free "Massachusetts Agricultural Fair" listing. This colorful brochure lists all the town and regional fairs being presented in the state this year.

One of the most delightful fairs of the season is the Middlesex County 4 -H Fair, held at the Westford 4-H Fairgrounds August 26, 27 and 28.

Write to "Fair Brochure," Middlesex Cooperative Extension, 105 Everett Street, Concord, Mass. 01742 or call 369-4845 or 862-2380. Cooperative Extension, a division of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst, offers equal opportunity in programs and employment.

If you have knowledge of an event of interest to all, write COMING ATTRACTIONS, care of this local newspaper, and tell us all about it. Be it chasing whales or pedaling up a hill, we'll listen.

Dear Betty Crocker

Q. Why does my pie crust fall apart when I roll it out? G.B., Strawberry Point, Iowa.

A. Ingredient proportions may be incorrect. Measure all ingredients accurately. If dough is dry, add water, one teaspoon at a time, until the correct consistency is reached. Adding water after you've started rolling will cause dough to become tough from overhandling.

Q. What distinguishes half-and-half and whipping cream and which should I use for cooking? Mrs. D.M., Waxahachie, Tx.

A. The difference between creams is percent of butterfat. Half-and-half contains 10 to 18 percent butterfat. Heavy whipping cream must contain at least 36 percent butterfat. Use half-and-half in recipes calling for cream. Whipped cream can only be made from heavy or whipping cream.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, Mn. 55440.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Crush dried herbs between your fingers to bring out full flavor.

Woodchips From S-9

I need preservatives, and lots of them! "

Fr. John Crispo said to the organist, "When I get through with my sermon, I intend to ask those of the congregation who want to contribute to the building fund to stand up, In the meantime, I want you to play some appropriate music. "What do you mean by appropriate music? " "Play the Star Spangled Banner," replied Fr. John Crispo.

The psychiatrist was examining Louis O'Malley of Winchester, "How many ears does a cat have? " "For crying out loud," Lou exclaimed, "ain't you ever seen a cat? "

My cousin David Tully was telling his son, Dennis about the evils of staying out late and the benefits of getting up early. "Remember Dennis," he concluded, "It's the early bird that catches the worm. "Oh yeah, dad," Dennis retorted, "how about the worm — look what he got for getting up early." "That's just it," David said, "that worm was out all night and was on his way home."

Kathy is a very difficult person to fit for shoes. The tired shoe salesman at Eugene's in Reading dragged out half of his stock trying to please her when he finally stopped to mop his brow and asked, "Do you mind if I rest a minute, your feet are killing me! "

Joe Foley of Tewksbury, an amateur weather forecaster, was watching the rain come down through a window. He turned and said to his lovely wife, Patricia, "We needed this, I've been predicting rain for over a week." When my friend, Mike Curran got married, he was so nervous he asked, "Father, is it "kisstomary" to "cuss" the bride now? " "No, not now," he replied, "maybe later."

Folks, think of this for a moment. Buddy Hacket said, "I've had a few arguments with people, but I never carry a grudge — you know why? While I'm carrying a grudge, they are out somewhere dancing.

Lady Godiva put everything she had on a horse. Riding the rough Coventry, a man in a crowd of onlookers said, "you'd think they never saw a white horse before! "
